Clayton Officials Indicted; Charged With Malfeasance

True Bills Returned Against Three Commissioners; Two Others Facing Investigation Today.

SOLICITOR PUSHES PROBE OF COUNTY

Five Counts Are Listed in Record That Requires Seven Feet of Paper.

Three Clayton county commissioners were indicted on charges of malfeasance in office by a Clayton grand jury yesterday afternoon. Two others face investigation today as Solicitor Roy Leathers continues the investigation into county affairs begun last spring.

True bills listing five counts were returned against W. S. Lee, College Park farmer; E. L. Stephens, retired mail carrier of Jonesboro, and Dr. J. R. Wallis, of Lovejoy. Scheduled to appear before the grand jury in its last-day session today are F. C. Car-gile, of Riverdale, and H. Grady Moore, Conley merchant, the two remaining members of the Clayton county commission.

The indictments, which read the same against all three commissioners, listed five counts in a record requiring seven feet of paper.

The first count maintained that on January 4, 1933, the Clayton board of commissioners illegally authorized a salary of $150 per month to Sheriff E. L. Anderson, now out of office, a like sum to County Policeman G. S. Brown, and $100 per month to County Officer J. O. Thompson and Deputy Sheriff R. L. Dixon, and that all salaries were authorized without the required tax levy.

Tax Fl. Fas.
In the second count it was charged that the commission contracted with Sheriff Adamson allowing him to receive five per cent of all 1937 tax fi. fas. he collected, 10 per cent on all prior fi. fas., and 25 per cent of all fi. fas. taxes considered uncollectable as per an audit in May, 1938.

The third and fourth counts held that the commissioners illegally contracted with Horace Moore, cousin of Commissioner H. Grady Moore, to provide supplies for county work and that these contracts were let without public bid. The fifth count charged similar contracting with Commissioner Moore himself.

Solicitor Leathers said the grand jury in its surprise investigation would consider the two remaining commissioners today. He said he did not know until a few days ago that the bills would be presented this term.

It is expected that grand jury presentments will be given Judge James C. Davis, of the Stone Mountain circuit superior court, sometime today.

Opportunity Knocking

PARIS, Texas, Nov. 28.—(AP)—A Chicota farmer told a newspaperman he was looking for a wife. "The woman I am looking for," he said, "ought to have a boy old enough to be a CCC enrollee, she should have a job in a sewing room, and be old enough to draw a pension."

"This hasn't anything to do with it, but I have had some hard luck. My chickens died of the cholera. My dog left home. My cow went dry, and my crops were a failure."

NAZI RATION PALLS ON TECH STUDENTS

Second Day of Experiment Finds Quartet Game But Getting Gaunt

The four Georgia Tech students, who are learning the eating habits of the German people by consuming only prescribed Nazi war rations, yesterday struggled through the second 24 hours of their self-imposed diet, but paled somewhat as the day's fare produced no meat at all, not even a goldfish.

Instead, for lunch they had a double helping of spaghetti with an ounce of cheese and half an egg, a handful of boiled cabbage, three slices of bread, a small pat of butter and the customary glass of skimmed milk.

Dinner No Better.
Dinner was no better. It consisted of a cereal bowl of mush made from a tomato, a bit of onion and some bread, along with a double order of potatoes, three slices of bread, milk and three stewed apples to split four ways.

They attested the day's only ray was the lone bottle of beer each can have any time during the 24 hours. Previously deciding to do without breakfast, and split the skimpy rations into two meals, the Georgia "Germans" yesterday vetoed the idea and today will have for their first meal two slices of rye bread and a dash of jam.

Gather at Inn.
Last night they gathered in the Georgia Tech College Inn for the meal, supplied by the student dining hall's manager, Jack Lester.

At the table were Henry Mayo, Ed Schmidt, George Stribling and James T. Scanlon, who Monday afternoon started their hunger investigation to decide the outcome of an argument on the resistance of Germans under limited food rationing.

Of the four Mayo is weakening the most. His distinct dislike for cabbage, also on Monday's menu, was telling. At lunch he turned up his nose or.e and when he looked again the cabbage was

DARKNESS COVERS ASHEVILLE AFTER POWER WALKOUT

Employees Quit Work in Protest Against Refusal of Company Officials To Grant Closed Shop.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Nov. 28.—(Wednesday)—(AP)—This resort city of 55,000 was in almost total darkness early this morning after employees of the Carolinas Power and Light Company walked out in a protest against refusal of company officials to grant a closed shop.

Company officials said in a brief statement that the employees had "gone on strike" and that everything possible would be done to provide the city with current.

They also said that crews from other of their plants were on their way here and would be ready for work at dawn.

Affiliate of AFL.
The workers who left their posts are members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor. They left their jobs shortly before last midnight after a three-hour meeting and presentation of their demands to the company.

Police and firemen patrolled the city with lanterns and flashlights and deputies were assigned to repair crews who did not participate in the walkout.

Four men were taken to police headquarters and charged with throwing ropes over wires in an attempt to pull them from poles. Here and there throughout the city there were reports of minor squabbles, but police passed them by for the present.

Current still was provided hospitals and should that fail, they could resort to auxiliary power plants. Police radios were quieted and the fire department hitched its alarm boxes to an emergency battery.

People Grope.
Refrigeration plants were affected and throughout Asheville people groped their way through their homes in search of candles or any other means of providing light.

Newspapers were not cut off from the main power plant.

No members of the local union, B-907, would comment and there was no indication when full power would be turned back on, although it was still available in a small section in the northern part of the city.

Basis for Settlement
Gained in Car Strike

DETROIT, Nov. 28.—(AP)—A basis for settlement of the Chrysler Corporation labor dispute was agreed upon tonight by the management and the CIO-United Automobile Workers Union.

Details of the agreement were not immediately available, but James F. Dewey, Federal Labor Department conciliator, said he was preparing a statement on the result of today's conference, which had continued into the night.

ANOTHER BRITISH HEAVY CRUISER DESTROYED BY SUB, BERLIN CLAIMS

10,000-Ton Ship's Loss Is Denied by England; Germany Says She Has Control of the Atlantic.

BOAT 'DESTROYED' NEAR SHETLANDS

Submarine Captain Is One Who Raided Huge Scaja Flow Naval Base.

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER.

BERLIN, Nov. 28.—(AP)—The German high command tonight announced that a British heavy cruiser had been "destroyed" by a German submarine, while the German press already was celebrating the claim of naval authorities that the Reich had won mastery over the north Atlantic.

"A British heavy cruiser of the London class," said the announcement, "was torpedoed and destroyed east of the Shetland islands by Lieutenant Captain Prien, the victor of Scaja Flow."

Lieutenant-Captain Guenther Prien is the 31-year-old U-boat commander who became a hero overnight by slipping into the Scaja Flow naval base in the Orkney Islands, north of Scotland, to sink the battleship Royal Oak October 14. The Shetland Islands are about 100 miles north of Scaja Flow.

Official quarters in London said nothing was known of the German claim of destroying a heavy cruiser. They suggested that it arose from belief in Germany that the cruiser Belfast had been sunk. The British admiralty has acknowledged that the Belfast was damaged by mine or torpedo off Scotland November 21.

Not in Same Class.
(The Belfast is not of the London class. Ships of this class are 10 years old, displace 9,750 to 9,850 tons, carry eight 8-inch guns and a normal complement of 650 men, make 32 knots.)

Britain has acknowledged the loss of eight warships since the war began and damage to the cruiser "Southampton" as well as the Belfast.)

The radio joined the press in driving home to the German public the claim of German naval authorities that Germany now had cleared the British fleet not only out of the North Sea but out of the North Atlantic as well.

"Our men-of-war now dominate the North Atlantic also," said newspaper streamer headlines. Sinking of the British armed merchantman Rawalpindi November 23 off the coast of Iceland was given the widest play until the high command's announcement on the cruiser.

(Meanwhile, from London, it was announced that the latest British loss at sea was the 2,483-ton steamer Uskmouth which went down with three of her crew of 25 missing. The cause of her sinking was not made known immediately.)

Deutschland Credited.
Although the press did not name the craft that sank the Rawalpindi, foreign naval experts accredited to Berlin expressed the belief the 16,697-ton vessel must have been the victim of the German vespocket battleship Deutschland. They deduced this from the fact that Vice Admiral Wilhelm Marschall was stated to be in command of the group of vessels which surprised the British ship.

(The British admiralty announced that the Deutschland was the Rawalpindi's attacker, German officials apparently did not desire to disclose officially the positions of vessels at sea by identifying the attacking ships.)

Authorized sources were unable

Germany said her latest victim was sunk about 100 miles north of the naval base.

LOST CHILD FOUND HUDDLED IN WOOD

Tot Is Safe After 26 Hours Exposed to Cold; Laughs After Rescue.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.
MT. BERRY, Ga., Nov. 28.—Twenty-six hours of cold and exposure in the woods near her home two miles north of here, ended this afternoon for 21-2-year-old Mattie Glovis Whittle when frantic searchers came upon her huddled deep in protecting leaves.

Rushed to the McCall hospital in Rome, she was found to have suffered only a few superficial scratches about the body, and to be in good physical condition. Physicians called it "a miracle."

At Mercy of Elements.
Throughout last night's cold and bitter wind the child, dressed only in a brown sweater, cotton dress and underclothing, shoes and short stockings, had been at the mercy of the elements.

The child's unusually intense fear of the dark was believed by her mother to have saved her life by causing her to move about restlessly, thus keeping her circulation active. As soon as she saw her house after being rescued, she broke into a smile, and laughed lightly.

The mother collapsed.

Wanders From Home.

The child, daughter of Mrs. L. R. Adams by a former marriage, wandered from the porch of the prosperous farm house in mid-afternoon yesterday.

Her mother and other members of the family were indoors, and her presence was not noted for some time. Eventually, the mother looked for Mattie and, unable to discover her, began searching the neighborhood.

The word spread rapidly, and soon scores of men, women and children were searching carefully

Italy Dislikes Anti-Jewish Laws-White

Enforcement Is, To Put It Mildly, in Abeyance, Says Observer.

By WILLIAM L. WHITE.

Special Correspondent.

ROME, Italy.—(Air Mail)—I don't know yet what the ordinary German thinks of the Russo-German pact, but I can tell you what the ordinary Italian thinks of it by the following joke which is running around the better coffee houses. Bearing in mind the fact that the Nazis rose to power by denouncing "Jew - Bolshevism," the Italians are saying, "Now that Signor Hitler has allied Germany with the Soviets, perhaps he will give Europe peace by marrying and settling down to a quiet domestic life with some nice girl from a good Jewish family."

Laws Unpopular.
The Italians' anti-Jewish laws, insisted upon by Hitler about a year ago, and put into effect to butter up the cogs of the Axis, have never been popular in Italy, which is basically an urbane and civilized Latin country. The laws have not been repealed. There has been no open rupture with the Axis on this or any other point. But their enforcement is, to put it mildly, in abeyance.

Best Possible Face.

When the Russo-German alliance was first announced, the Italian government put the best possible face on it to its own people, and yet the shock went deep. Fascism was sold to the pious Italian people as the best possible defense against Bolshevism. The Axis alliance with the Germans—against whom the Italians have traditionally fought in all their wars, including the last, and whom they deeply dislike—was sold on the argument that National Socialism, being a crude imitation of Fascism, was also a bulwark against Bolshevism.

Don't forget also that Italy's intervention in the Spanish war cost its taxpayers millions of lire and its common people thousands of lives. They were separated from both on the plea that support of General Franco by the Axis was a part of Fascism's holy war against the Reds.

So now—before the sod has had

M'NUTT IF F. D. R. WAIVES, POLLS SAY

Three Surveys of Experienced Analysts Point to Identical Conclusion.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—If not Roosevelt in 1940, then Paul V. McNutt.

Three different polls taken recently of as many carefully selected groups of trained observers arrive at that sort of forecast for the Democratic Presidential ticket next year.

While it is altogether too early to give anything approaching a seasoned appraisal of what the political situation will be some six months hence when the Democrats prepare to hold their national convention, it is nonetheless interesting to analyze the reasons which have led to a qualified prediction of McNutt's nomination at this time over a half dozen equally prominent contenders.

None of the three selected polls referred to may be said to be conclusive; at the most they are merely significant. Similar polls in the

LIBERTY OR DEATH IS AIM OF FINNS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—(UP)—Hjalmar J. Procopio, Finland's minister to the United States, tonight used the famous words of America's early patriot, Patrick Henry—"Give me liberty or give me death"—to describe the attitude of his people in the present Russian-Finnish crisis.

Speaking extemporaneously over an NBC radio network, Procopio told his American listeners that his country "has always defended the principles of individual freedom and democracy even as your mighty republic."

tries took a decided turn for the worse.

Three new incidents occurred, the radio said, at points scattered along the 600-mile frontier from the gloomy Arctic ocean to Lake Ladoga, north of Leningrad.

But no blood was reported spilled, as on Sunday, when Russians, charged a Finnish cannonading caused death and wounds to 13 Red army men.

The first of three new clashes were related by the Moscow broadcast to have occurred. The frontier on the isthmus between the peninsulas of Rybachy and Sredni within the Arctic circle.

"One hour later, at 6 p. m., (9 a. m., Atlanta time) near 'Hill 204.2,' rifle fire broke out from the Finnish side. Soviet troops did not return the fire, however, which

Laura Hope Crews Begins Study Of Intonations Under Mrs. Kurtz.

By ANNIE LAURIE KURTZ.

The Constitution presents herewith the exclusive diary of Mrs. Annie Laurie Fuller Kurtz, Atlanta, who worked with her husband, Wilbur Kurtz, as technical director in the filming of "Gone With the Wind." Since the filming of a picture has no regular order, the diary, likewise, maintains no sequence. This is the second of 15 instalments:

January 24, 1939:

Today I was engaged to coach Miss Laura Hope Crews in her lines, but when I met her and heard her naturally soft, sweet voice, I wondered why anyone would want to change it. But Miss Crews says she wants to talk just exactly as I do for the picture. So we got to work at once. I went with her in her car to the Brown Derby where we had lunch; then we went over the script, the part where she appears first. Later we drove to Max Reinhardt's where we had voice recordings made—my first appearance before a "mike." Miss Crews says she will use this record at home so as to learn the intonations. I think Miss Crews is one of the most charming persons I have ever met and I'm sure we are going to become good friends.

Officials Take Steps To Defend Rights as Neutrals; New Measures Used Against Mines.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Netherlands government sources declared tonight Dutch ships will continue to sail the seas despite war dangers and new blockade restrictions imposed by the British and French.

A semi-official statement, referring to uneasiness over the sinking of seven Dutch ships in recent weeks and to delays to shipping caused by the blockade, said active steps were being taken through diplomatic channels in belligerent capitals "to defend our rights as a neutral state."

Netherlands ships, it was announced, are sailing with new safety measures worked out with naval advisers following the loss of the Simon Bolivar, one of six Dutch vessels lost from mines.

Crossings of the dangerous North sea now are proceeding in groups of two or three led by tugboats equipped with paravanes to ward off mines.

Russia and Finland, Seeing Impending War, Didn't Spend All Time on Diplomacy

It was Russian machine-gunners such as these who, according to the Soviet-controlled radio, repulsed a detachment of Finns after they are reported to have crossed the Russian-Finnish border. According to the reports the Finns retreated under "withering" fire.

Under cover of artillery fire from guns such as this camouflaged howitzer, the Finns are reported to have crossed into the Russian territory—an act which the Soviet maintains shows their disinclination to abide by the 1932 non-aggression pact.

REDS, FINNS CLASH AT THEIR BORDERS

was from two Finnish soldiers who fired five shots," the radio said.

"The third incident occurred when two Finnish artillery shells burst 500 yards within Soviet territory as marked by boundary post No. 367, and small groups of Finnish infantry attempted to cross the frontier.

"But they were met by rifle and machine gun fire and forced to retreat to the interior of Finnish territory.

"The latter incident was said to have occurred near Vedlitsa, north of Lake Ladoga."

The broadcast added that the Soviet guard on the frontier in the far north, scene of the first clash, had been strengthened, and that there had been no Russian casualties.

The radio said the other two Finnish soldiers in the northern clash escaped into the interior of Finland.

(The Finnish statement made no mention of Russian reports that five Finnish soldiers were fired upon by Soviet troops between Rybachy and Sredni peninsulas. The latter are in the far north some 500 miles north of Vedlitsa.)

The clashes were reported just after Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov had handed to the Finnish minister a caustic note denouncing the 1932 nonaggression pact with Finland, and the Red army organ, Red Star, had declared new "provocations" would be answered with fire "until those who have created the incident are exterminated."

1,000,000 Men Massed.

With the Soviet believed by observers to have close to 1,000,000 men in position along Finland's borders, the next move from the Kremlin was awaited with considerable anxiety after the radio declared firing broke out and Finnish artillery opened up at Vedlitsa, north of Lake Ladoga.

(Meanwhile, the Associated Press at Helsinki reported Finland had stiffened her resistance tonight.

(The foreign office called the situation "most critical." At midnight the Finnish government drafted a still secret answer to the Soviet government and gave quick denial to Russian assertions that Finnish troops had crossed the border behind an artillery barrage.

Broadcasts Are Denied.

(Finnish military authorities also denied Russian broadcasts that Soviet troops had repulsed a Finnish detachment using artillery that had attempted to invade Russian soil at Vedlitsa, north of Lake Ladoga, and a further broadcast that a Finnish detachment had been pushed back over the border and three prisoners taken.

(The Moscow radio declared three incidents occurred, one in which five rifle shots were fired, another on the frigid arctic frontier in which it was claimed the three prisoners were taken, and a third at Vedlitsa. Finnish denials only mentioned the Vedlitsa broadcast specifically.)

(A midnight communique said of Russia's violation of the nonaggression treaty: "The Finnish government has considered the new note sent by the Soviet government and defined its attitude and will hand over its reply tomorrow.")

Three Soldiers Missing.

(The United Press, from Helsinki, said the Finnish military district in the far north reported that a Finnish patrol exchanged fire yesterday with "unknown persons" near the village of Puumangi on a small peninsula and that three Finnish soldiers were missing.

(The clash was believed to have been the one announced by the Soviet government last night, in which three Finnish soldiers were said to have been captured after a Finnish attack on Red army patrol along the frontier between the Rybachy and Sredni peninsulas.

(Military reports from the Karelian isthmus frontier, 20 miles north of Leningrad, failed to confirm Soviet reports of a clash there.

(It was reported without official confirmation that Finnish troops have fallen back an average of one kilometer (six-tenths of a mile) from the Karelian border.

(Russia's denunciation of the 1932 pact of non-aggression was answered last night by a statement of a government spokesman that "Finland cannot be intimidated.")

Leningrad Menaced.

Molotov's note to Finland said that by refusing to withdraw her troops from Soviet borders Finland "betrays a hostile back" and an intention to "keep Leningrad directly menaced."

"Denial by the government of Arrows indicate where Finns and Soviet troops are reported to have clashed. The arrow at the top points out the spot on the border along the isthmus between the peninsulas of Rybachy and Shredni, where three Finns were reported captured; next highest arrow refers to "Hill 204.2" which is located just inside the Finnish border north of Lake Ladoga. The lowest arrow indicates the point of the latest of three clashes reported yesterday. It is on the boundary south of the lake and is the point which Russia claims causes much "pressure" on Leningrad.

Finland of the fact of the abominable shelling of Soviet troops by Finnish troops, which resulted in victims, cannot be explained by any other reason than a desire to lead astray public opinion and deride the victims of the firing," it asserted.

"Soviet troops do not menace vital centers of Finland because they are removed for hundreds of kilometers from those centers," but, he said, Finnish troops stationed less than 30 miles from Leningrad "create an immediate threat."

Taking up the Finnish suggestion that both sides withdraw their border forces, Molotov said that to move them back 12 to 18 miles—the distance Russia proposed that Finnish troops be withdrawn—would put the Red army within the suburbs of Leningrad itself.

By its refusal of the Soviet proposals, Molotov said "the government of Finland has shown that it continues to maintain a hostile attitude towards the U. S. S. R., does not intend to pay any regard to provisions of the non-aggression pact and has decided to keep Leningrad under threat also in the future."

"The government of the U. S. S. R. cannot reconcile itself to a situation wherein one side would lead a non-aggression pact and the other side would undertake to carry it out," he continued.

"In view of this the Soviet government deems itself compelled to state that from this date it considers itself free from the obligations undertaken under the non-aggression pact concluded by the U. S. S. R. and Finland and systematically violated by the government of Finland."

A Shocking Blow.

The Soviet action in denouncing the seven-year-old non-aggression pact was the most shocking blow to the Finns in the "war of nerves" which has gripped the Baltic states since the German-Russian partition of Poland.

The little republic received the news with outward calm, although there had been no hint that it was forthcoming.

The pact frequently had been cited by Finns as an important factor in the event of an impasse over Russia's demands. It was concluded in 1932 and supplemented the following year with an agreement defining an aggressor.

Subsequent pacts—in 1937 and 1938—defined the Soviet-Finnish frontier and pledged the two governments to good neighborly relations.

It was estimated that Finland had 400,000 men, including reserves and regular troops, ready to defend the nation. This figure represents more than one-tenth of the population of the little republic which has been partially mobilized since the crisis developed.

Civilians have been removed from many frontier districts and cities to rural areas as precautionary measures.

"We Are Not Afraid."

"We are not afraid," was the theme of comment tonight on Helsinki's partially blacked out streets. The Finns, who pride themselves on their calmness in the face of the serious turn of events, had little else to say.

The Finns have insisted all along in the face of the increasingly threatening attitude of the Moscow press that the Russians were "just talking."

The most vitriolic of these attacks came Sunday when Pravda, organ of the Communist party, attacked Finnish Premier Aimo Kaarlo Cajander and urged that the fate of "Polish Jackanapes" should be learned in Helsinki.

This attack was followed by an ultimatum-like message from Soviet Premier Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov protesting the alleged border incident Sunday at Manila where Finnish cannon were declared to have spoken.

In his reply yesterday, Foreign Minister Elias Erko left the door open to arbitration by announcing readiness to meet the Russian demand, for withdrawal of Finland's troops on condition that Soviet forces followed suit.

Erko also advised Molotov that investigation disclosed no shots were fired across the border by the Finns and suggested there might have been "an accident on the Russian side in connection with exercises which unfortunately claimed a loss of life."

Misunderstanding Blamed.

Field Marshal Baron Gustaf Mannerheim, commander-in-chief of the Finnish army, asserted the Russian account "must have been founded on misunderstanding" since the nearest Finnish batteries were 31 miles from the frontier.

In her original demands, had followed acquisition of similar concessions in Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia, Russia asked of Finland.

1. A lease on a small section of Finnish territory near the entrance of the Gulf of Finland—for military purposes.

2. Title to some small islands in the Gulf of Finland.

3. A strip of the Karelian isthmus north of Leningrad.

4. Portions of the Rybachy peninsula on the Arctic coast.

In exchange, Finland would offer a portion of Soviet Karelia, twice the size of the Finnish territory requested. Russia also offered to withdraw objections to fortification of the Aaland Islands in the Gulf of Bothnia, if the fortifying was done by Finland alone, and demilitarization of the Finnish-Soviet border.

Finland announced that she had gone more than half-way in accepting the proposals, but that to go all the way would cut her off from the Arctic and seriously affect her status in the Baltic.

STATE DEPARTMENT RESERVES COMMENT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—(AP)—State Department officials reserved comment today on Russia's renunciation of her nonaggression pact with Finland.

This government recently appealed to Moscow to avoid any steps which would interfere with friendly relations between Russia and Finland. There was no indication that any new representations would be made, and some authorities said privately they could think of no additional steps which the United States might take.

HARRIS ACQUITTED OF MURDER CHARGE

Man Accused of Slaying Clellian Chalker Is Freed.

CRAWFORDVILLE, Ga., Nov. 28.—(AP)—John Sherman Harris was acquitted here tonight by a Taliaferro superior court of a charge of murdering Clellian Chalker, Gibson, Ga., merchant, last December 17. The jury was out about an hour.

Trial of Harris, who was convicted without recommendation for mercy in a Glascock county court several weeks ago and who later gained a new trial, was held under Judge Hawes Cloud here after the defendant was granted a change of venue last week when the Glascock county jury box was reduced below the minimum required by law.

Judge C. J. Perryman in Glascock court refused a new hearing but the state supreme court reversed the decision of the lower court.

Hattie Moore, a servant in the Harris home, provided the only unusual feature of the trial when she repudiated a statement made in the first trial. She denied stating that she told the first trial jury that a stranger, whose identity has not as yet been established, appeared at the Harris home the night Chalker was murdered on a country road near his home about three miles from Gibson.

Defense Held 'Emergency' In Roosevelt's New Budget

Additional Money Will Be Asked for Army, Navy, Coast Guard and Counter-Espionage Under Separate Sub-Budget Brought on by War.

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Nov. 28. (AP)—A presidential decision to segregate normal and "emergency" expenditures for defense in the annual budget resulted today from the administration's efforts to build up the armed forces and isolate the nation from the European war.

Some $500,000,000 of expenditures which may be attributed to the fact that there is a war and the United States is trying to remain neutral, Mr. Roosevelt said at a press conference, will go into a separate segment of the budget.

The way he put it, there will be an "A" budget for defense setting forth what would have been expended in the year beginning July 1, 1940 had there been no war. There will be a "B" budget, the President explained, containing the estimates of additional expenditures which are considered necessary because of the conflict.

Actually there is only one budget submitted to congress, but the portions for defense, relief, agriculture activities, the commerce department and all the other governmental activities are called budgets, whereas a more accurate term would be "sub-budgets." The defense items will be placed in different sub-budgets the President indicated.

Abnormal Naval Increase. The navy's regular "A" budget has been sent to the house appropriations committee, he asserted, adding that he was putting in the "B" budget items calling for abnormal increases of naval defense.

The same thing applies, Mr. Roosevelt said, to the army, coast guard, and counter-espionage operations of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The "B" budget has not been completed, the President said, and the $500,000,000 is a rough estimate. The entire budget, he said, would be submitted to congress the day after he delivered his annual message to the legislators.

He said he probably would deliver the message in person either on January 3, when congress convenes, or on January 4.

In response to questions, Mr. Roosevelt asserted today that the comments and newspaper editorials which mentioned a special tax to finance the added defense expenditures were all to the good.

Other developments of the day: Authoritative sources disclosed that Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax had invited Russian Ambassador Ivan Maisky to clarify Moscow's policy regarding Finland.

Food Minister W. S. Morrison told the house of commons that rationing of butter and bacon would start January 8 with purchases restricted to four ounces. Although sugar will not be rationed at that time, consumers will be asked to restrict purchases to one pound per person.

Rationing had been scheduled to start in mid-December, but Morrison said the postponement was decided upon because of the prevailing opinion that "we should get over Christmas with as few restrictions as possible."

The air ministry announced successful reconnaissance flights over northwestern Germany by Royal Air Force planes.

A British auxiliary cruiser landed 73 German prisoners, including 12 officers, at a Scottish port. They were understood to be survivors of a sunken submarine and three German freighters, whose disposition, was not disclosed.

LEADERS ADDRESS CITIZENSHIP RALLY

1,500 Rail, Express Employees Hear Rivers, Hartsfield, Ramspeck and Others.

Railroads gradually are waking up to the fact that they must meet increased competition with better service, Governor Rivers told more than 1,500 railway and express employees who gathered at the city auditorium last night for a citizenship rally.

"The present plight of the railroads is partly attributable to the railroads themselves," the Governor asserted. "Like many citizens they have failed to meet changed times and changed conditions. The public will not support them except on a basis of equal economy and service."

Mayor Hartsfield told the group that the railroads are the lifeblood of Atlanta and that its success or failure will follow the success or failure of the railroads.

In stressing the importance of registering and voting, the mayor said every man and woman should vote regardless of whether they have any preference in candidates. He added that it was their duty to see that good men run for office.

Other speakers on the program were Congressman Robert Ramspeck; W. A. Crawford, of Savannah; Charles M. Kimball, of Washington; and Lambdin Kay, of Atlanta.

43 NAZI SUBMARINES ARE BELIEVED SUNK

LONDON, Nov. 28. (AP)—Informed French and British naval sources today estimated a total of 43 German submarines have been sunk since the beginning of the war September 3.

Thirty-three of these were attributed to British action while a French naval source said the French navy had sunk about 10 more. Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, told the House of Commons November 8 Germany had about 60 submarines ready for action when war broke out, but that more were being built.

to say today what reprisals, if any, Germany would take in response to Britain's publication of an order in council providing for seizure of German exports at sea. They said Germany first would see how the new policy works out.

(The British government made the export blockade effective December 4.)

Air Raid Repulsed. DND, official German news agency, meanwhile reported, low-flying British battle planes attempted a raid on Borkum Island, at the mouth of the Ems river today, but were ward off.

The agency said the English attacked with machine guns but did not drop bombs.

(The German base on Emden is located at the mouth of the Ems river in northwestern Germany. The island of Borkum is off the northeastern Netherlands coast.)

Earlier, DND had reported one plane of a British squadron which flew over northwest Germany last night, was forced down on a stormy North sea and probably was lost, while another dodged over the Netherlands in order to avoid the sea.

War Experts in U. S. Scoff At 'Magnetic Mine' Reports

The antennae mines are equipped with copper wires attached to small floats on the surface. Direct contact is not necessary, for when the iron or steel hull of a ship passes near them in salt water, the wires become a pole of an electric battery. The galvanic action set off by the proximity of a pole of iron and a pole of copper, with salt water as an electrolyte, creates a current sufficient to explode the mine.

The horned mine explodes on contact with the hull of a ship. They are not difficult to remove from shipping lanes by the defending navy since a wire flung from a minesweeper will cut the anchor line of the mine and allow the mine to float to the surface.

The Leon oscillating mine is difficult to remove from shipping lanes, because there are no anchor lines to be caught by wire cast from minesweeper.

time to close over the rough clay of those graves in Spain—Germany allies herself with Stalin and Mussolini even gives lip-service to the wisdom of this agreement.

So again now—this country being a dictatorship—it is plastered with mottoes reading, "Mussolini a sempre ragione," which, being freely translated, means "Mr. Big can do no wrong." And this may be so, only, if it were a democratic country with freedom of criticism, and if it were Roosevelt instead of Mussolini on the pan, you can bet your bottom lira that they would be pouring it on hot and heavy—hollering from the housetops that he had thrown the nation's resources away in Spain for nothing and that the Axis policy, culminating in Hitler's present adventure, has been a complete and expensive bust for Italy.

News Whispered. This is not a democracy and so none of this was hollered from the housetops, but the general context of it was whispered behind a good many hands. According to gossip in the foreign colony, news of this disaffection was first given to Mussolini by the head of his secret police not so many months ago. Mussolini didn't believe it, but before he obeyed his natural impulse to stuff the bearer of bad news in the doghouse, he did a little checking up from another source. When this second report came back just as sour as the head of his secret police had originally said, things began to happen.

You may remember the big cabinet shakeup in Italy a few weeks ago. They occur regularly

Explosives Believed Perfections of Old Antennae-Type Weapon.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 28. American army and navy experts were almost unanimous today in scoffing at British reports of deadly new "magnetic mines" which lie on the ocean bottom and rise to destroy a ship after being attracted by the ship's steel hull.

Continuous and powerful currents are needed to activate the electromagnets used in industrial establishments for lifting metals, they pointed out. Even then it is necessary to bring the magnet close to the metal before it will work.

From where, they inquired, would come the current necessary to activate a magnetic mine?

Consensus among high army and navy officials appeared to be that the German mines proving so effective against belligerent and neutral shipping are perfections of the old antennae mines used by Britain and America during the World War.

Different Exploding Device. Unlike the horn type mines which explode on being struck by a moving object, the antennae mines are not detonated as a result of impact.

Sunk beneath the surface of the ocean, officers said, antennae mines have protruding copper wires attached to small floats. The wires may be anywhere from 35 to 100 feet long, and when the iron or steel hull of a ship passes in their vicinity in salt water, it was said, the wires become in effect a pole of a battery.

The galvanic action set off by the proximity of a pole of iron and a pole of copper, with the salt water as an electrolyte, experts explained, creates a weak electric current—strong enough, however, to detonate the mine.

Antennae mines might easily be dropped from airplanes, these officials said, because they would not be detonated by shock. A mine about 3 1/2 feet in diameter would hold from 350 to 400 pounds of TNT, they calculated, and since the Germans are said to have hundreds of bombing planes capable of carrying 4,000-pound military loads, a considerable number of such mines could be dropped at one time.

May Be of Oscillating Type. John Hays Hammond Jr., scientist and inventor of many devices employed by the United States navy, said the German mines may be variants of the Leon mine used by Germany and Turkey during the World War. Of the so-called "oscillating" type, the Leon mine is infinitely more difficult to sweep up than other mines.

"If the mines which the Germans are using are of the Leon type," Hammond said, "they are slightly heavier than the water they displace."

"They sink slowly when sown. On reaching a predetermined depth, a hydrostatic valve switches on an electric motor which drives a propeller, causing the device to rise to a certain depth, probably about 18 feet."

"When the mine reaches this depth the power automatically is switched off again, and it commences to sink. This cycle is repeated during the life of the motor, and the chances that the mine will be swept up are reduced tremendously."

"The difficulty with this mine, at least during the World War, lies in the fact that the life of its motor is limited."

U. S. WON'T PROTEST BLOCKADE—PITTMAN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28. (AP) Senator Pittman, Democrat, Nevada, an administration leader in congress, said today it was his opinion that the United States would accept Great Britain's blockade of German exports without protest.

Pittman, who is chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, expressed the opinion that while the country might suffer some financial loss from the blockade, it would not join other neutral nations in protesting against seizure of German goods. Italy, The Netherlands and Belgium already have filed such protests.

every few years under Fascism and are a crude method of passing the patronage pie around. But this was the biggest for Italy in a decade. It is noteworthy that every single general and cabinet minister prominently identified in the public mind with the Axis policy (except Count Ciano, who is in the family) got the ax.

Of course the Man at the Top is responsible for every important decision Italy has made. But, in a dictatorship as in a democracy, the people prefer to hold him in reverence, and when a policy proves unpopular they are satisfied with the scalp of an underling—they like to believe that all will be well once Tugwell or Starace or Corcoran or Alfieri or Cohn has been chopped down and dragged away.

Now that the outstandingly pro-Axis element is out of high office, it would be a mistake to assume that the new cabinet is anti-Axis or pro-British and French. It is only pro-Italian, and while it is disposed to make no further sacrifices for the Axis, it is perfectly capable of reviving this policy should a change in the military situation make it seem worth while.

And this has completely satisfied the people of Italy. Mussolini's popularity is back up to where it was before the Russo-German alliance.

ARK ROYAL BELIEVED AT AFRICAN HARBOR

BOSTON, Nov. 28. (AP)—Officers of the American West African line freighter West Humhaw, arriving today, reported they saw at Freetown, West Africa, November 8, a big British aircraft carrier they believed to be the Ark Royal, which the Germans announced they had sunk several weeks before that date.

The vessel was surrounded by 10 destroyers and other ships, apparently for protection, and a close inspection was impossible, but it was the "general belief" in Freetown, they said, that the carrier was the Ark Royal.

Between 60 and 70 freighters were waiting at Freetown to be conveyed to England, the officers added.

KING SAYS BRITAIN STILL RULES SEAS

Blockade To Be as Easy as Possible on Neutrals, Chamberlain Says.

By J. C. STARK.

LONDON, Nov. 28. (AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain told the first war session of parliament today that Britain did not enter the conflict against Germany "with any vindictive purpose" and disclaimed any intention of imposing upon the foe "a vindictive peace."

The prime minister spoke after King George opened the session with a speech assuring the British empire that the royal navy was keeping "free and open the highways of the sea" despite mounting losses to British shipping.

Chamberlain declared the British-French blockade against German exports, to become effective next Monday, would do the least possible injury to neutrals "consistent with the purpose of stopping German exports."

Chamberlain referred to neutral protests against the blockade and said that "we recognize these measures may cause inconvenience and perhaps loss to neutrals" but that "these measures for helping

STREAMLINED ARMY HAS A WORKOUT AT FORT BENNING

Here is more evidence that mechanization and "streamlining" of the army has not affected the relation of its most formidable team—the infantry and artillery. Here is a tank as it plunges into a stream, the target of artillery fire. Notice the smoke and splashing of water caused by the firing. This warlike scene took place at Fort Benning maneuvers.

You are in the army now, with Uncle Sam's soldiers manning the machine guns in a night exhibition at Fort Benning. The gunners are using tracer bullets. Notice the weird effect caused by lines of fire. Mass machine gun fire is frequently used to close in an infantry attack on a highly organized hostile position.

This series of pictures on maneuvers at Fort Benning gives you some idea of what modern war is like. At Fort Benning it is only make-believe. On the other side of the Atlantic it is more realistic. You would think this powerful tank rumbling up the mountainside could withstand almost any attack. Seemingly anyone would be safe inside its thick shell. But . . .

Suddenly it encounters a tank mine. For a few moments there is no sight of the seemingly impregnable tank as trees and dirt and smoke gush like a geyser from the spot where the war machine was pursuing its purposeful course up the mountain. Imagine, if you will, what has happened to the tank or the soldiers inside, but if that doesn't satisfy, take a look at the next scene. . . .

Two of Uncle Sam's men—Majors John Eden and Glenn H. Anderson—look over the remains of the monster. Like an animal shot dead in its tracks, the tank rolls over on its side. It will do little more damage—for the present, at least. Notice the extent to which it has been torn apart by the blast. It's evident the tank is not entirely invincible in modern warfare.

Emory Freshmen, Sophomores To Stage Pushball Contest Today

Annual "Free-for-All" Will Take Place on South Campus at 2 P. M.; Event Delayed by Late Arrival of New Sphere.

That annual Emory University mayhem between freshmen and sophomores with the gentle name of pushball will clutter up the south campus at 2 o'clock this afternoon with battered and prostrate bodies, signifying nothing.

Postponed from its original date, November 15, because whatever company it is that makes pushballs was a bit delinquent in fulfilling its contract, the event will climax a day dedicated to freshman humility.

Members of that first-year order will be required to wear all clothes backward, humble themselves before upperclassmen and in general give the idea that dirt is a pretty good thing after all. But the Student Activities

Council has put the "quietus" on pushball day's most pleasant pastime in years gone by—the dethroning of professors. Last year freshmen became so avid in their pursuit of pants that several faculty offices suffered. Last week the council said "O. K." to everything but the assault on professorial dignity.

So after much ado the "frosh" and the "sops" will line up on an intra-mural field and dethrone each other in an attempt to make a huge ball, six feet in diameter, go one way or the other. Proponents claim victory at pushball proves nothing, including intellectual superiority, but it's lots of fun. At least, it's fun for those who watch.

RALPH FORRESTER HAS BUSY 6 WEEKS

Accumulates Four One-Year Sentences in Courts on Various Charges.

The last six weeks have been eventful, to say the least, for Ralph Forrester, Atlantan who has had many contacts with the law.

In that time, he has accumulated four years to serve in prison camps unless, of course, higher courts reverse his sentences or he obtains a pardon or parole.

Forrester got two 12-month sentences yesterday in Fulton criminal court on charges of speeding and lottery on August 22, and his driver's license was revoked for a year by Judge Jesse M. Wood. Solicitor Bond Almand said Forrester recently was sentenced to serve a year for bastardy and another year for lottery. All cases are on appeal to higher courts.

Officers W. J. Anderson and T. E. Davis said Forrester was speeding through the north side at 90 miles an hour when they caught him August 22.

'Big Brothers,' Seeking To Aid Poor At Christmas, Open Drive Today

Doors Swing Wide for Contributions at New Headquarters, Located This Year in Witt Building; Public's Response for Needy Is Asked.

The Big Brothers, Atlanta's December army of amateur Santa Clauses will open their headquarters today in the Witt building, 251 Peachtree street, A. L. Belle Isle, general chairman of the group, announced yesterday.

The office space is the contribution of the Burdett Realty Company to the annual drive put on by the Big Brothers to bring Christmas cheer into every home in Atlanta.

The office will be used as general clearing house for this year's campaign. Volunteers will register there for the pre-Christmas sale of the special Big Brother edition of The Constitution, cash contributions will be received, and plans will be mapped for the large charity ball to be given at the municipal auditorium.

All money raised by the paper sale, the ball, and appeal for cash will be converted into Christmas dinners for the poor, and well-filled Christmas stockings for children not on Santa Claus' list of the elect.

This is the seventh year that the Big Brothers have put on their drive, each year with increasing success. Last Christmas thousands of dreary Atlanta homes were brightened, and the Christmas of underprivileged children and old folks cheered by gifts from this army of the warm-hearted.

Nucleus of the peace-time army is formed by American Legionnaires. Members of other patriotic, civic, fraternal and religious organizations will be asked to join. If you desire to make this Christmas happier for some poor person, you are asked to fill out the attached coupon and mail or bring it yourself to Big Brothers headquarters, 251 Peachtree street.

Big War Games at Fort Benning Get Down to Serious Business

15,000 Troops Assembled for Winter Training Go Through Rigorous Maneuvers in Warmups Preparatory to Planned Theoretical Combat Over 97,000 Acres.

FORT BENNING, Ga., Nov. 28. (P)—Combat units are giving the terrain a beating, anyway, in warmup war games of the army infantry school.

Formal maneuvers, with referees' decisions as to the fate of theoretical opponents, will come later on the 97,000-acre reservation here.

Assembly at Fort Benning of about 15,000 troops ranging from machine gunners to military police afforded officers and men today a long-awaited opportunity to expand studies in practical co-ordination of organizations and arms.

Division Moved South. The streamlined First Division of 8,000 men, moved from northeastern forts under command of Brigadier General Walter C. Short, settled down for winter training, augmenting forces regularly assigned to the tank and rifle institution.

Planes, tanks, artillery and chemical warfare devices were available to supplement infantry detachments in the field. And most of them leave their marks on timber and sandy clay soil. Artillerymen, lips parted to equalize the jar upon eardrums, see vegetarian seared at battery positions by the blasts which hurl 75-millimeter shells on their way in a tumultuous barrage.

Machine Gunners Busy. Machine gunners, aided by tracer bullets and light bombs, blaze away at theoretical obstacles with the professional skill of pneumatic drillers chopping concrete.

Cutting into the ground with heavy treads at speeds ranging up to 28 miles an hour, medium tanks take shallow creeks and steep slopes in stride and can push over sizeable trees in sham attack.

Officers reported fire power of the rifleman was practically doubled by substitution of the new semi-automatic Garand for the old bolt-action model of 1903, which was used throughout the World War.

The concentration is one of half a dozen ordered throughout the nation incident to plans for improvement in national defense and an immediate increase in army enlisted strength, to 227,000, announced soon after the outbreak of European hostilities three months ago.

Sally Saver Cooks 'One-Dish Meals' at West End

BYRD WILL EXPLORE
MYSTERIES OF VISION

SOUTHBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 28. (AP)—Uncle Sam's Antarctic adventures will explore unsolved problems of human vision as they work in the dazzling glare of South Polar sunlight.

Dr. E. D. Tillyer, research director of the American Optical Company, said today that the explorers, headed by Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, took with them an instrument called the adaptometer. The instrument was developed to test human eyes for night blindness, an indicator of vitamin A deficiency, he said.

T. R. DUTTON RITES
TO BE HELD TODAY

Will Be Conducted at North
Atlanta Baptist Church.

Final rites for T. R. Dutton, 37, of Campbellton road, who died at a private hospital Monday of injuries received last Wednesday in an automobile accident, will be conducted at 11:30 o'clock this morning at the North Atlanta Baptist church.

The Rev. Homer Johnson and the Rev. W. C. Wilson will officiate and burial will be in the New Hope Baptist churchyard under direction of H. M. Patterson & Son. Dutton was fatally injured when the car in which he was riding crashed into a tree on Ponce de Leon near Drexel avenue, Decatur. Harold Padgett, said to have been the driver, was less seriously hurt and was dismissed from the hospital Monday.

No one was charged with any violation of the law in connection with the accident.

MASONS SET ELECTION FOR TOMORROW NIGHT

The annual meeting and election of officers for the Masonic Service Association of Fulton and DeKalb counties will be held at 6:30 o'clock tomorrow night in the Masonic Temple. Judge B. P. Gaillard, of Gainesville, will be the principal speaker. Also on the program is J. Wilson Parker, grand master of the Grand Lodge of Georgia.

Thirty-five hundred girls in a London clothing factory are making uniforms for soldiers.

WEST END WOMEN
SEE COOKING SHOW

Sally Saver Prepares Two Mixed Grills for Christian Church Auxiliary.

West End women crowded the auditorium of the West End office of Georgia Power Company yesterday to attend the third of the series of informal cooking schools conducted by Sally Saver, foods editor of The Constitution.

At the class, held for the women's auxiliary of the West End Christian church and sponsored by The Constitution, Miss Saver prepared two mixed grills.

The first was a sausage grill suitable for informal suppers and easy to prepare. The ingredients were sausage, bacon, sweet potatoes, mushrooms and peaches, which were broiled under a low flame in butter and brown sugar.

Delectable Hamburgers.

Hamburgers and spiced beans were used in the second mixed grill, and were cooked with onions, and sliced tomatoes. Miss Saver lectured with the demonstrations, and questions were asked by members of the audience. The schools are held for Constitution readers who wish to discuss cooking problems with Miss Saver personally.

Miss Saver baked and garnished a ham, using pineapple, cherries, and spiced peaches. She also prepared a relish, made of cranberries and a whole orange, peel and all, to be served with any meat.

Cinnamon Apple Salad.
For a salad Miss Saver fixed apple, boiled in cinnamon sticks and red vegetable coloring, and stuffed with dates and nuts.

Local merchants donated foods which were given as prizes, as were the dishes prepared by Miss Saver.

The next school in Miss Saver's series will be announced in The Constitution. These schools are held in various vicinities for the convenience of the organizations who wish to attend the classes.

1940 AUTO TAGS
SENT TO ATLANTA

License Plates Will Be Placed on Sale
January 2.

REIDSVILLE, Ga., Nov. 28.—(AP) State trucks rumbled northward from Tattall prison today bearing advance samples of what every Georgia motor vehicle will be wearing next spring.

Boxed and headed for a State Revenue Department warehouse in Atlanta were several thousand sets of green-and-orange license plates which are to go on sale at the capitol January 2.

Each Plate, under an act adopted by the legislature at its last regular session, bears the words "Peach State" above the registration number, and below, the picture of a peach. The background is in leaf green and the imprint a rich orange.

Last year the first day rush saw sale of 5,335 sets of tags, a sharp increase over 1938's opening day, when only 3,412 were sold. Total registrations for January, 1939, were 130,103, compared 94,291 for the same period the previous year.

In Atlanta, Chief Clerk E. T. Williams of the motor vehicle division, said registrations through November 24, 1939, were 487,811 with gross collections $1,906,485.67—surpassing the entire year or 1938, when 452,661 registrations brought $1,671,281.48.

Are Finns Such Fools?

If, as Soviet Russia claims, Finnish troops fired across the border at the Red armies encamped opposite their own forces, killing and wounding a number of Red soldiers, then the Finns will go down in history as fools so consummate no sane man could credit the possibility.

Here is a comparatively tiny country, bravely refusing to submit to the demands of one of the world's greatest powers, even though those demands are backed by a symbolic pistol to the head. Here is a nation of people utterly imbued with love of country. Here is a race that for centuries has remained sufficient unto itself without entanglements with outside politics.

And such a nation, if you believe Soviet propaganda, deliberately indulges in a provocative act, almost sure to result in a war that must, inevitably, wipe Finland from the map of free nations within a few weeks, at most.

Stalin, of course, has merely taken a leaf from Hitler's book, a leaf dealing with the routine method of international gangsterdom, when dealing with a weaker, and helpless, nation. But it is difficult to conceive how Stalin or any Russian can scream about the "perfidy of Finland" and refrain from laughter. The thing is so bare-faced, so undeniably a piece of crude staging.

The wonder arises, though, as to why the Soviet authorities think it necessary to whip up the emotions of their own people, before sending their armies into Finland on their mission of rape and destruction and theft.

Does Stalin doubt the complicity of his own enslaved people, if he doesn't create a "cause" however shoddy, before he orders them to war?

When the Russo-Finnish war comes, as now seems inevitable, the sympathy of an entire world will be with little Finland. But sympathy will not offset the overwhelming strength of Soviet hordes and Soviet guns.

No one, however, will ever believe that Finland has reached a stage of such suicidal recklessness she perpetrated the first provocative act.

Fact Disseminating

Publication of six articles, the first of which appeared in yesterday's Constitution, on the pressing farm problems of Georgia, is an important and potentially invaluable contribution by the Citizens Fact Finding Movement.

It is, after all, of little value to the state when any group uncovers factual data, unless the information thus gained is publicized in such manner that the entire state may become familiar with that information. In other words, fact finding is essential if unsatisfactory conditions are to be remedied, but fact finding is itself useless unless it is promptly followed by fact dissemination.

There can be no refuting the simple logic that the fundamental cause of Georgia economic troubles is the low average income of her farm families. When agriculture lags behind, as an income producer, it is inevitable the entire economic structure of the affected section shall suffer. This country is still predominantly agrarian in character, despite the utterly desirable growth in industry which has marked recent years.

The Fact Finding Movement has reduced the economic condition of the average Georgia farmer to a statistical picture that can be of immense value in increasing his earning power. The movement has, too, outlined a suggested mode of procedure by which this condition can be improved.

Now comes the series of articles, for publication in The Constitution, designed to acquaint the entire state with the degree of the problem to be solved and the suggested method of solution. It is an outstanding opportunity for voluntary co-operation by the citizens of Georgia in a cause which vitally affects the well-being of every man, woman and child.

It is a chance to prove that democracy can work in such a situation. That concerted action by an entire state can be achieved, without resorting to the regimentation and dictatorship of the totalitarian nations.

Mr. Tokes yearns for a truckdriver's job, that he might avenge himself on road hogs. With a ten-ton truck and his vocabulary, Harold should never lose an accident.

The great football wars draw to a close, and the coach who was nothing but a character builder awaits his horrid doom.

Proof in the Eating

If those four Georgia Tech students who seek to test the dietary stringencies of Nazi Germany under war-time rationing, are anxious to make a really accurate test, they will add several restrictions other than those of the table, to their mode of life during the set period.

They must realize that Germans who are compelled to subsist on the restricted diet outlined, at the same time face demands on their physical strength rather different from those made on such American youths as the four voluntary guinea pigs in this local experiment.

For instance, none of the four will ride in an automobile to or from school—or anywhere else—during the test, if they wish to reproduce conditions of Nazi life as accurately as possible. The gasoline ration in Germany is so low that the family car for a journey to school and back is absolutely out of the question.

They will, also, increase the amount of their daily work until it approximates that of the average German youth, held to his place in factory or office for 12 or more hours a day.

If they add these two conditions, and try to maintain their normal health and strength on Nazi rationed diet, they will really prove something or other. They may, even, contribute factual data to the subject of discussion which started the whole thing, whether the German army or the German people will collapse first under present economic and war conditions in blockaded Germany.

Impossible Project

The strange experiment of the Royal Fraternity of Master Metaphysicians, in planning the life of a red-haired, blue-eyed, five-month-old baby girl to make her "immortal," raises doubts and a host of skeptical questions. Granting the sincerity of the group which hopes to prove that "immortality can be actually achieved, not as a ghost or spirit," many questions come to mind.

In the experiment with the baby, proponents of the idea say the child will never hear death or disease spoken of, and her diet and training will be rigidly controlled to demonstrate that "man is an immortal being." For the leader of the metaphysical fellowship, and his followers, believe that illness and death are caused by destructive thinking. Science has long since demonstrated that the mind has a vital bearing on the physical body and that "destructive thinking"—a most general term—affects the welfare of the physical being. Tests with human beings have shown conclusively that the emotions, a manifestation of the mind, can work for or against what, for want of a better term, is known as "good health."

But what are the processes by which the metaphysicians hope to prove their case? How is it possible for any human being not to hear death or disease spoken of in a lifetime, even an immortal "lifetime"? And, if it is possible, what sort of outlook on life would such an individual have? Surely, to deny death is to deny life, to deny much that man has pondered, and to deny God.

In 732 Tongues

Once again the amazing vitality of the Bible is demonstrated. From London comes the annual report of the British and Foreign Bible Society, disclosing the addition of nine new languages into which portions of the Scriptures have been translated during the year ending last March, and bringing the total to the amazing figure of 732.

Of the nine new translations, five are for Africa, three for Asia and one for America. Few persons would be able to locate where these languages are spoken, so far off and remote are they, so little known. For instance, Wongo in the Belgian Congo and Mori in the Central Celebes Islands. Yet the Word has gone there.

That these translations entailed a tremendous amount of work was revealed at the meeting. The complete Bible has been translated into Nandi, the speakers of which tongue number about 185,000 persons spread over a large portion of Kenya. Eight hours a day for seven years was required to complete the translation! In a troubled world, it is cheering to discover that the message of the Scriptures goes forth, to the remote and little-known corners of the earth. It is interesting to observe in this connection also that this news comes from London, from where much of the principal war news also emanates.

Royal flushes in three suits showed up in a Texas poker deal. We won't say it was pre-arranged, though it smacks of pro wrestling.

According to the glossy and elegant publicity photos, the latest thing in the sports model motor car is still a blonde.

Editorial of the Day

WELL-LEARNED LESSON.

(From the Cleveland Plain Dealer.)

Explanation of the relatively small volume of new business generated by the war in this country will be found, in part, in the unwillingness of corporate executives greatly to expand plant capacity in order to accommodate war orders.

Their decision has been made with the thought in mind that the war may not be of long duration, and that an increase in productive capacity in the face of existing uncertainty on that point would be ill-advised. Not a few active industrial executives remember to their sorrow the consequences of plant expansion in the last two years of the other war. It added heavily to the burdens of post-war reconstruction and in many cases was responsible for the indebtedness which led to receiverships and financial reorganizations.

Incidentally, the demand for materials and labor to be employed in plant expansion came into competition with that engaged in regular factory operations and became an important factor in the sharp inflation of the period.

If American industrial executives are fore-sighted enough to adhere to a policy which will preclude another war boom, the nation will be spared another long period of painful readjustment when war is over. It is, indeed, a hopeful sign that they have learned so well the lessons of inflation and of unwise expansion which were taught in the expensive school of World War experience.

THE CAPITAL PARADE FAIR ENOUGH

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

NEW TECHNIQUE WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Unobserved by all but a few score of government officials and big business men, a striking new development has appeared in the vital field of government-business relations. This is nothing less than the perfection of an informal technique, combining persuasion and psychological pressure, by which the administration directly participates in matters of private business policy affecting the general welfare.

For example, the United States Steel Corporation will soon announce the steel price for the next quarter. Steel production is running at capacity; the backlog of orders is huge, and past practice in the steel industry would suggest the inevitability of a marked price rise. If past practice should be followed, other prices of all sorts would rise with the steel price, for steel is the bellwether of our economy. Such price rises, which are thought to contract demand and reduce production, are greatly feared by governmental economists of the school of SEC Commissioner Leon Henderson, Commissioner of Labor Statistics Isador Lubin, and Laughlin Currie, economic adviser to the President.

The confident prediction now is, however, that steel prices will not rise appreciably. If the prediction is fulfilled, other prices will probably remain in line. Unless the government thinkers are deceived, the upward surge of prosperity will continue with only a short winter setback. And all this may be achieved by application of the new technique to the steel industry.

IRON IN VELVET The technique is of comparatively recent origin, as can be seen by the fact that in February, 1937, both times despite outraged protests of the administration. It dates, in fact, to the establishment of reasonably good relations between certain sectors of big business and the government. This process began only a couple of years ago, when Averell Harriman, of the Business Advisory Council, sent a pleasant stock-broking friend, Prentiss Connelly, down to Washington, to act as a liaison man between business and government. Connelly began giving a series of get-together dinners, and at these dinners men of the caliber of United States Steel's Edward Stettinius and the White House's Thomas G. Corcoran met and got to know one another.

Perhaps the first instance of the technique's application in a rough way was in the spring of 1938, when United States Steel was considering a depression-induced wage-cut. Joseph P. Kennedy, who was then in this country, was hastily mobilized. Corcoran and his partner, Benjamin V. Cohen, joined Kennedy in negotiating with Stettinius and other representatives of the steel company. It was made pretty plain that, if Big Steel cut wages, the President would blame the economic consequences on the company. The board of directors then unanimously voted to maintain the wage scale, and, in his fireside chat beginning his summer vacation, the President offered a handsome compliment to the steel leaders.

Since then, the technique has been somewhat refined by the creation of the Temporary National Economic Committee. This body, commonly known as the Monopoly Committee, serves as the vehicle for publicity which would otherwise have to go through the White House. If Steel should defy the prophets and raise its prices after all, officials of United States Steel would certainly be called before the TNEC to explain and defend their action. The steel business would also be subjected to whatever other pains and inconveniences the administration could devise. Through informal contacts, Stettinius and his colleagues are well aware of these facts, and will naturally be influenced by their awareness. Such is the new technique.

PRO AND CON As to the extent of this influence, there is a wide disparity of opinion. Businessmen, who are naturally free to regard the new technique as an infringement on their freedom, simultaneously complain of this, and state that they really aren't much influenced after all. The government men probably entertain exaggerated notions of their own importance. Nevertheless, the new technique is quite definitely a fact, and, being quiet, flexible, and not cursed with the usual irritations of regulatory bureaucracy and on the whole friendly, it is an extremely interesting fact. Nor is it unprecedented, for numerous parallels exist in England.

Since publicity is the government men's real weapon, there is a sort of democratic check on them. If they go too far, the businessmen can tell them. "Publish and be damned." The technique has already been applied in other directions, notably to the oil business, which was recently called before the TNEC to give an account of itself. It is undoubtedly due for further development, and deserves to be watched and tested with care, and without prejudice.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

At the Wire.

Just got in under the wire and saw "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" this week in the closing days of its six-week run. And now feel impelled to add my say to the reams of columns that have been written about the Capra production.

First of all, let me say that fundamentally the idea behind the picture was good. Rather simple, perhaps, but altogether praise-worthy. No one can see it and doubt Capra intended to preach a sermon on simple, honest patriotism. Something that is surely needed in this day and time, with all sorts of terms and conditions working against the simple fundamentals of Americanism from within, and with a rising tide of anti-democratic ideas mounting without. Also with so many organizations springing up—membership at so much a head—whose leaders are chiefly motivated by their percentage of those initiation fees. Organizations which loudly proclaim their cause as the promotion of Americanism.

Americanism doesn't need that kind of promotion. For Americanism is something within each and every one of a real American, something of the spirit that can't be adequately defined, but which grows to full flower when its seed is tended in the consciousness of the growing American boy or girl.

And the picture, "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," not only emphasizes the simple honesty of real patriotic faith, but also emphasizes the need of building a better Americanism through the boys of the coming generation.

Treatment

Unfortunate.

However, in some important features, Capra's treatment of his theme was ill-advised and unfortunate.

I don't think senators had much ground for their objections to the term, as reported after the Washington showing. After all, Capra made only one senator and three representatives, out of the entire membership, really corrupt. A small percentage. And it was but natural that, lacking proof to the contrary, the senate of the state should believe, and support, a co-senator they had known, without suspicion of venality, for 20 years in preference to a raw newcomer.

But the picture was unfortunate, especially at this time, in that it tended to shake confidence in the visible operations of a democracy. Not lessening confidence, you note, in democracy itself, but in those who may give but lip service to its ideals, while they hold important position.

There have been scores and hundreds of similar examples of newspaper alertness to the well-being of the people. No Atlanta needs to be reminded of similar services given by the press of this city.

Therefore, I regret much that Frank Capra had to spoil what might have been a really great picture by dragging in a reduction ad absurdum about one of the freest institutions of free America, the free press.

man, a boss with his strength based upon graft and selfishness, able to control the newspapers of an entire state, is so utterly false to truth that he ought to be called on it.

No human institution is free from black sheep and newspaper men would be the last to deny that there have been, in the long history of American journalism, instances where individual newspapers have been owned, or controlled, by corrupt interests. But they are the rare exceptions.

To suggest even, that a predatory, unscrupulous boss could ever control even a sizeable proportion of all the newspapers of an entire state is an absurdity.

In fact, it has been that inability to control the press which has proven, time and again, the downfall of selfish political machines and, by the same token, the safeguard of the interests of the people.

Huey Long had established a dictatorship in Louisiana, with the most venal of graft a commonplace. He was getting away with it until the newspapers of New Orleans exposed the rotten boldness of the thievery he countenanced. It was because of the newspapers that the Long stranglehold on Louisiana was broken.

Tom Pendergast would still be boss of Kansas City, mulcting honest poor people of graft contributions so he could squander hundreds of thousands on the race track, if the Kansas City Star had not been the first agency to expose his crookedness.

There are scores and hundreds of similar examples of newspaper alertness to the well-being of the people. No Atlanta needs to be reminded of similar services given by the press of this city.

Therefore, I regret much that Frank Capra had to spoil what might have been a really great picture by dragging in a reduction ad absurdum about one of the freest institutions of free America, the free press.

Remarks NEW YORK.

Not Pertinent Nov. 28.—Willie Bloff, the Chicago pander who muscled into control of the moving picture projectors throughout the United States and of the studio trades and crafts in Hollywood, answers the disclosure of his true character with some irrelevant remarks. He can't deny that he is a pander or that he still owes all but eight days of a six-month sentence and a $300 fine for pandering, because these facts are of record. He can't plead any technicality, because the record proves that he received $29 in specific instance, the earnings of a prostitute inmate of a brothel in which he admitted that he was a bartender and in which the state contended he was a partner. No two ways about it: Bloff was a pander by trade and by deliberate choice.

Bloff attempts to create a belief that the disclosure of this record at this particular time was part of a plot to embarrass pending negotiations on behalf of the union which he represents, the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees and Moving Picture Operators. He says it is an attempt to discredit him.

In the latter contention Bloff is inexact. However, if his own record discredits him that is another matter.

'Vicious' "He is known as an associate of well-known gangsters," says a report written by Lieutenant James Egan, of the Chicago police, assigned to the state's attorney's office and detailed in the investigation of rackets. "He has been known to members of the Chicago police department for the last 20 years. He is a thoroughly vicious hoodlum and has always been with gangsters."

As to the opportune or inopportune timing of the disclosure, these are the facts:

Tom Courtney, state's attorney of Cook county, including Chicago, has no initiative in the matter. I gauged the facts out of the official records and laid them before Courtney complete. Up to that moment Courtney had no suspicion that Bloff still owed time, but under the circumstances Courtney had no choice but to proceed to extradite Bloff from California and compel him to finish his sentence for one of the foulest offenses, if not the vilest offense, of all.

Rumored How did I happen to select this time to expose Bloff? For three years I had been receiving communications and hearing casual remarks that Bloff was a pander. Two years ago an inquiry brought the information that he had a record of several arrests but no data on a conviction.

Last summer, when Bloff and George Browne, the president of the union, were attempting to kidnap the rich unions of stage, movie and radio actors, the rumors were revived, but still nobody would take responsibility for a flat accusation. And only a month ago, in San Francisco, Carey McWilliams, a member of the administration of Governor Olsen, of California, said he, too, believed Bloff was a pander but had no proof. McWilliams represents a CIO group opposing Bloff's union in Hollywood.

Therefore, the next time I was in Chicago, which was last week, I determined to run down the truth.

GOOD MORNING

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

A BOY IN LOVE.

Dr. W. H. Faust, in a helpful sermon at Stone Mountain last Sunday, used an illustration I want to pass along to you today. He was speaking of love, and how we seek to express love one to another and toward God, and how essential it is love shall have some outlet—some mode of expression. And this was his story.

He said the late Dr. H. R. Bernard used to tell how, as a boy in Tennessee, he longed for some way by which he might find a gift worthy of his love for his sweetheart, and how in those earlier days boys knew nothing of fancy boxes of candy for their sweethearts, but had to depend upon simpler expressions of their love. Young Bernard lived in an apple tree, and he said he had one wish, namely, that every tree in Tennessee might be an apple tree and that he might know which was the tallest of all the apple trees and the reddest apple on this tallest tree—then he would gladly climb to its summit and pick that reddest apple from that tallest tree for that girl he loved so much.

I like that story. It takes me back to those glorious days in my own life when I discovered I was in love, and my effort to express that love. I remember once when I had gone home to see my father and mother, while the student at Mercer, and how I asked my mother to give me a hen and her brood of little biddies. My mother smiled and asked me what in the world I wanted with a hen and 15 little biddies in a college dormitory. I told her I had a special use for them. She said I might have any hen and biddies she had. I picked out a pretty buff orpington hen and the day-old baby chicks—15 little soft, throbbing beings of gold! I got on the train for Macon that night as happy as a king.

I got off that train at 2:30 o'clock that morning in Macon and walked straight to my girl's house on College street, opened the screen door, and left the gift there, and then I walked on through Tattnell Square park to my dormitory, my heart beating with joy. I shall never forget how my sweetheart's father laughed the next evening, as I sat with him in front of the fire, waiting for her to come down. He said that old hen liked to have scared him to death when he opened the door early that morning to get his Telegraph. But I could tell he was pleased with the gift. Best of all, she was pleased!

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

A CALM ARGUMENT It was Mark Twain, I think, who first said that when he felt impelled to go out and take exercise he always sat down and remained very still until the impulse left him.

It is my idea that when the fortieth birthday comes to a man, he should resolve to be calm. He should, of course, give up golf and all exercise, save, possibly, deep breathing and a short walk to the corner drug store for a cigar.

I think, too, this same attitude should be adopted with regard to arguments and the other exercises of the body and will.

I have felt, even, a slight, very slight, stab of sympathy for Fritz Kuhn, of the German Bund. Small-Fry Fuehrer Kuhn wrote letters to a blonde, and the letters were read from the witness stand. Any man who is 40 and a little fat has no business signing his letters other than "Sincerely" or, at most, "Cordially yours." When a man 40 or over goes into the business of writing down his tender passions, he becomes a pitiful sort of object. Detesting Small-Fry Fuehrer Kuhn and his Bund as much as I do, I nevertheless felt a pang of sympathy for him.

A man 40 or more years old ought to quit writing love letters to blondes; ought to give up all exercise, and also eschew all furious arguments.

I had not meant to have so long an introduction to a serious subject, but I had just returned from lunch and a chance meeting with an old friend who has basted me in an argument for the past several years. He has the louder voice.

UNEMPLOYED YOUNG PEOPLE

This friend of mine wins the argument by hanging the table and saying, "Don't tell me they (boys out of college and high school) couldn't find jobs if they really wanted to work. They want to start in at the top, or almost there, and don't want to get their hands dirty."

Immediately, if I attempt to raise a mild objection, he bangs the table again and says, "Don't tell me."

This sort of argument isn't good for his health, and I hope some day to improve him. Now, I think, I can win the argument on paper.

The American Youth Commission is composed of well-known men. I wrote something of this last Sunday. Two of its members are Owen D. Young, of General Electric, and General Robert Wood, of Sears, Roebuck. These men, and others on the committee, cannot be put down as "visionaries," "New Deal crackpots," or "idealists." They are practical men.

They estimated that there are between 3,500,000 and 4,000,000 young Americans, between the ages of 18 and 24, who cannot find jobs.

They are not lazy, trifling and no-good "bums," who want to start at the top or near it. Most of them, it may be assumed, are willing to get their hands dirty.

The commission utterly dismisses the fiction these jobless "could find work if they wanted it."

A COUPLE OF QUOTES "In the entire country," says the report, "a few thousand jobs probably are vacant because no competent applicant has appeared. Another few thousand chances probably exist for unusual young people to make their own jobs by starting new enterprises. But there are several million more young men and women who want to work than there are jobs available for them."

"The totals do not balance. The bright or the lucky ones get the jobs, but some will have to be left out until their elders, who control the economic conditions of the country, find some way to open the gates."

This seems to be the sanest thing that has been said. It remains for the elders to open the gates.

That is why people are losing patience with those who merely repeat, as a sort of chant, "Let's do it the American way." Certainly we want to do it the American way. But what is that way? And have we been doing it the American way?

In other words, the time has passed when catch phrases, slogans or speeches will do the job. Frank Neely was talking along this line to Atlanta Rotary on Monday, although he did not mention unemployed youth. He was speaking of the necessity of thinking-through our problems, of working out a plan and then, most important, putting the plan to work, and keeping it at work.

He pointed out we appointed a smoke inspector 20 years ago, and have been paying the salary each month. The smoke increases. We do nothing. Plans are made for traffic control. They gather dust. And so on.

Long can we permit them to remain idle, eating bitter fruit?

I would like again to point out that it was this same age group, discouraged, unemployed, bitter, disillusioned, unable to exercise the natural energy of the young, who put Hitler in power and overturned a government and upset a world.

And don't bang the table at me!

The Manager's First Job Is To Learn His Powers And Responsibilities

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

A young alien merchant, who had just passed his final examination and achieved the dignity of citizenship, stood in the lobby of a country bank, surrounded by other merchants and farmers, and asked these native-born citizens the same questions he had been required to answer.

"What is congress?" the judge had asked. And he had answered correctly: "The senate and the house of representatives."

"What is the supreme law of the land?" This, also, he had answered to the satisfaction of the judge, who expected him to say: "The constitution."

One of the farmers got this one wrong. "The supreme court," he said. He accepted correction to avoid argument, yet he spoke more wisely than he knew.

The school books say the constitution is the supreme law, and it is supreme in theory, but it doesn't hold its supremacy in practice. If one man can give orders and another can correct or countermand them, which has the greater authority?

The supreme court, while paying homage to the constitution, has often "interpreted" that hallowed document to suit its own prejudices; has, in effect, disregarded the constitution and made its own will the law. And any body with the power to do that is obviously possessed of greater authority than the constitution itself. Only a superior officer can countermand another's orders.

Yet there is another power, higher still—superior to both court and constitution—and we dare not forget its existence. It is a natural power, not made by man, and the constitution itself recognizes it.

The constitution (which is a partnership agreement, giving certain powers to the government and thus surrendering certain natural rights) expressly states that other rights, not thus given to the government, are reserved by the people.

In other words, the people naturally possessed all rights, and the government has no powers except those given to it by the people. And if the owners of a property give a hired manager certain powers, they are still the owners and their will still controls the property.

The supreme law of the land, under God, is the will of the people. It is the source of all law, and no law can have effect without it.

That truth is the guardian of all our liberties and the present hope of mankind. Only those who understand and treasure it can be worthy of democracy.

ATLANTA LIVING COST INCREASED BY 1.2 PER CENT

Higher Priced Food Is Principal Reason for Jump in Expenses of Lower-Salaried Group.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—The cost of living for families of wage earners and lower-salaried workers in Atlanta increased 1.2 per cent from June 15 to September 15, 1939, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported here today.

Secretary of Labor Perkins, under whom the bureau functions, said the percentage of increase for 32 cities in all sections of the country surveyed, was 1.2 higher on September 15 than on June 15. The percentage change in Atlanta during this same period on food was an increase of 3.2; on clothing the increase was less than 0.05 per cent; on rent, minus 0.6 per cent; fuel and light, plus 5.1 per cent; house furnishings goods, plus 0.2 per cent; and on miscellaneous items the decrease was less than 0.05 per cent, so it was not recorded.

In Savannah, the percentage change from June 15 to September 15 on all items was plus 1.8; on food, plus 6.9 per cent; clothing, decrease less than 0.05 per cent; rent, decrease less than 0.05 per cent; fuel and light, minus 2.0 per cent; house furnishings goods, plus 0.8 per cent; and miscellaneous, decrease negligible.

The percentage of change on all items of living in other South Atlantic cities was Baltimore, plus 1.0 per cent; Jacksonville, plus 1.5 per cent; Norfolk, Va., plus 1.5 per cent; Richmond, plus 1.6, and Washington, D. C., plus 1.7 per cent.

"These increases," Madame Perkins declared, "were largely to the rise in the cost of food that occurred between the middle of August and the middle of September, although the cost of all groups except rents was above the June levels in September."

The bureau's index of the cost of all goods purchased by wage earners and lower-salaried workers in Atlanta, as based on costs in 1923-25 at 100, was 79.9 on food, 73.1; clothing, 83.3; rent, 64.8; fuel and light, 71.6; house furnishings goods, 89.0, and miscellaneous, 84.9.

Similar indexes for Savannah, read: All items, 81.5; food, 80.8; clothing, 82.4; rent, 64.2; fuel and light, 81.0; house furnishings goods, 87.7, and miscellaneous, 91.4.

Additional Entries Increase Interest in Dress Contest

Junior League Adds One Candidate and Debutantes' Club Four Who Seek To Wear Gown Used in Film 'Gone With the Wind.'

Five more Atlanta belles yesterday swelled the ranks of the eligibles from whom will be chosen the girl to wear "Scarlett O'Hara's" gown to the Junior League charity ball on December 14.

The quintet qualifying yesterday with Mrs. DeSales Harrison, chairman of the Junior League's Scarlett costume committee, were Miss Margaret Palmer, an unmarried Junior League, and Miss Mary Virginia McConnell, Miss Peggy Dutton, Miss Florence Jones and Miss Jean Oliver, all of the 1939-40 Debutantes' Club.

The new entries bring the list of girls qualified to compete for the coveted role to 18. Of the total group, nine are unmarried Junior Leaguers and nine are members of this year's coterie of debutantes. Additional entries from both debutantes and Junior Leaguers are expected today, Mrs. Harrison predicted last night.

More Than 40 Expected.
"From present indications, it appears more than 40 Junior Leaguers and debutantes will send their qualifications to the committee," said Mrs. Harrison.

This committee, composed of Mrs. Harrison, Mrs. Lawrence Willet, Mrs. Bruce Woodruff, Mrs. William Huger, Mrs. W. A. Parker and Mrs. R. B. Pagan IV, will assess all the entrants on December 7 at the Piedmont Driving Club between 10 and 4 o'clock to determine which can best wear the gown used by Vivian Leigh in David O. Selznick's movie, "Gone With the Wind."

Miss Margaret Palmer, the only Junior League to enter yesterday, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Palmer, of 40 Woodcrest avenue. A graduate of Washington Seminary, where she was a Phi Pi, she later attended Randolph-Macon College for Women, where she was a Chi Omega. Prominent in journalistic activities in high school and college, she is a former editor of the "Miss Emma," seminary publication.

Miss McConnell enters, Miss Mary Virginia McConnell, first of the four debutantes to qualify yesterday, was presented to Atlanta society at a luncheon on November 2. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Owen McConnell, of 2490 Woodward Way, she attended Washington Seminary, where she was a Phi Pi, and Randolph-Macon, where she was a Phi Mu. Miss Peggy Dutton is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer C. Dutton, of 128 Seventeenth street, and formerly of Cincinnati. A former student at the University of Cincinnati where she was a member of the Tri-Deltas, Miss Dutton will make her debut as a member of this year's club at a reception on December 12.

Miss Jean Oliver, one of Atlanta's most accomplished equestriennes, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Oliver, of 315 Pine Valley road. A former student at North Fulton, where she was a Sigma Delta, Miss Oliver graduated last June from Sweetbriar College. She will make her debut at a supper dance at the Piedmont Driving Club on December 29.

Complete List of Entries.
Miss Florence Jones, last of the quartet of debutantes to qualify yesterday, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Winfield Jones, of 194 Peachtree Battle avenue. A former student at Washington Seminary, she later attended Randolph-Macon and the University of Georgia and is a Phi Pi and Chi Omega. She made her debut at a supper several weeks ago.

Those who qualified earlier are Miss Louise Robert, Miss Marianna Adair, Miss Beverly Bailey, Miss Jane Adair, Miss Ida Akers, Miss Roline Adair, Miss Christine Thiesen and Miss Alice Davis, all of the Junior League; Miss Ann Pappenhimer, Miss Caroline Candie, Miss George Dargan, Miss Josephine Sanders, and Miss Margaret L'Engle, of this year's Debutantes' Club.

We saw them take the part where Mrs. Elsing and Mrs. Merriweather are at Scarlett's and Melanie's booth and the two elderly ladies are gossiping and expressing themselves as strongly disapproving a young widow's going to a social function—where Aunt Pitty, mortified beyond words, finally exclaims, "Oh, dear, I hope the ladies don't think we're all fast!" We saw the table take his bow when, as Rhett Butler, Dr. Meade introduces him.

We lunched at the cafe, then we took a studio car and drove to the "Forty Acres." We showed them Tara, the back yard, the covered way to the kitchen, the old car shed, and we all had a thrill out of driving down Peachtree street, 3,000 miles from home.

Mr. Harris is a Kentuckian by birth and has had years of experience with orchestra work in connection with shows, particularly on the southern circuits. He scored the incidental music for "The Birth of a Nation," and his connection with another great southern opus is quite fitting. He is the father of the well-known radio star, Phil Harris.

I've always liked Mr. Brown on the screen, but now that I've seen him in person, I like him even better—even think him good-looking, for his face radiates charm, honesty of feeling, friendliness and good will.

After the broadcast, he talked to us informally—he told us about his work, which he takes with a seriousness quite in contrast to his accustomed levity. He says he is proud of the fact that his audiences consist mostly of children, and that their friendship, their approval is what he strives for—"To make kids happy is my aim and purpose," he said.

"Why yes, dear, of course he will," the mother replied.

"Oh," said the youngster with a happy grin, "won't God laugh!"

'Soviet Arm in U. S.'

Voters Think American Reds Closely Linked With Moscow.

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 28.—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's charge that Earl Browder, American Communist leader, "seems to feel that his first allegiance is to another country," is in line with the attitude toward Communists held by many American voters at the present time.

In a national survey just completed by the American Institute of Public Opinion a majority of those polled expressed the belief that the Communist party in this country is merely an arm of the Soviet Union, being either controlled directly by Russia or working in close consultation with Russia. Only a small minority in the survey said they thought the Communist party was entirely independent of Russia.

Violinist To Be Guest Soloist at Concert.
By MOZELLE HORTON YOUNG.
Joseph Knitzer, violinist, arrived here yesterday afternoon for his appearance as guest soloist with the Atlanta Philharmonic Orchestra at the Atlanta Woman's Club auditorium at 8:30 o'clock tonight.

With him is Mary Strickland, his wife, a concert pianist in her own right, and her husband's accompanist.

Knitzer will be the soloist in the Bruch Concerto for Violin, Opus 26, with the Atlanta Philharmonic, under Georg Lindner's baton, playing the orchestral accompaniment. This is the first time that the Philharmonic has imported an artist to appear as soloist.

Knitzer has appeared with outstanding success as soloist with such orchestras as the New York Philharmonic, the Philadelphia Symphony, and the Detroit Symphony.

In addition to playing the concerto tonight with the orchestra, Knitzer will play a group, including "Ave Maria," Schubert-Wilhelm; "Ritual Fire Dance," Debussy; "Nocturne in C sharp minor," Chopin, and "From the Homeland," Smetana. The orchestra will also play works of Beethoven, Saint-Saens and Rossini.

Postponing '40 Conventions Is Reported Topic of F.D.R.

Number of Persons Who Have Seen President Believed To Have Recommended That Democrats, Republicans Assemble at Least Month Later Than Usual.

By DOUGLAS E. CORNELL.
WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Nov. 28.

(P)—Suggestions that the 1940 Democratic and Republican national conventions be postponed and the political campaigns shortened were reported on excellent authority today to have been a topic of discussion between President Roosevelt and some of his recent callers.

A number of persons who have seen Mr. Roosevelt lately, it was learned, have recommended that the conventions, ordinarily held in June, be deferred for a month or a month and a half.

Their contention was that there would be scant interest and little could be accomplished in the early months of campaigns starting in July and running into November, particularly during a period of international crisis.

In addition, both parties would delay the establishment of campaign headquarters and save money.

The Democratic and Republican ENGINEERS' FEES REDUCED BY STATE

Board Has Enough Money To Operate.
Renewal license fees for engineers and surveyors were reduced yesterday by the State Board of Engineering Examiners because the revenue derived was more than necessary to operate the board.

The engineers' renewal fee was reduced from $5 to $4, while that for surveyors was cut from $3 to $2. R. C. Coleman, secretary of the examining boards, said.

"The board felt sufficient income to defray expenses could be derived with the reduction and thus save the applicants some money," Coleman said.

Applications for eight engineer's licenses and two surveyors licenses were approved by the board. Engineers: G. L. Ball, of West Point; R. D. Ballenger, of Atlanta; Elmer Bunnell, of Decatur; M. M. Carroll, of Bolton; J. A. Como, of Atlanta; A. F. Henry, of Atlanta; Herman Gundlach Jr. and R. V. Klein, of Atlanta.

Surveyors: J. G. Attaway, of Statesboro, and E. H. Rogers, of Savannah.

KENNEDY SWORN IN AS STATE REGENT

Savannah Lawyer Begins Six-Year Term; Has Served Since 1937.

State Regent John G. Kennedy, of Savannah, was sworn in yesterday for a new six-year term which began last July.

First unofficial act of the Savannah attorney was to smoke a big, black cigar Governor E. D. Rivers gave him after the swearing-in.

On March 25, 1937, Kennedy began serving the unexpired term of the late Samuel H. Morgan, of Guyton.

Chairman of the board of regents' committee on organization and law, he also is on the building committee. He is a former trustee of the Georgia Teachers' College at Statesboro.

The board of regents controls the 18 units in the University System of Georgia.

COURT STUDY SET BY WOMEN VOTERS

DeKalb Group Will Meet Friday in Decatur.

A comparison between juvenile and criminal court procedure will feature the 17th annual meeting of the DeKalb League of Women Voters at 11 o'clock Friday morning in the Candler hotel of Decatur.

Leading the discussion will be Judge James C. Davis, of the Stone Mountain circuit superior court, and Judge Murphree Candler, of the DeKalb county juvenile court. Other speakers include Miss Sara Weaver, county home demonstration agent; George W. Woods, chairman of the DeKalb county Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture; Mrs. Z. W. Jones, chairman of the health committee; Mrs. Stevens, who will present developments in education; Dr. Rufus Evans and W. M. Rainey, heads of DeKalb county health and education boards, and Mrs. Willie Morrow, of the Family Welfare Society.

The sources of the convention information laughed off as a pipe dream the thought that a delay might help the administration maintain control over congress.

In 1936, congress closed out its session between the two conventions, and frequently the proximity of the political meetings has occasioned adjournment rushes.

DR. E. A. FULLER IS RE-ELECTED BY BAPTIST BOARD

Atlanta Pastor Chosen for 11th Consecutive Term; Church Affairs Shown in Good Shape.

Dr. Ellis A. Fuller, pastor of the First Baptist church of Atlanta, was re-elected for an eleventh consecutive term as president of the Home Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention at the board's annual meeting yesterday.

Fuller, also president of the Georgia Baptist Convention, has served as head of the board since 1929.

A resolution of sympathy for "Jews and other persecuted minorities in their affliction in the present European conflict" won unanimous assent from the board.

"We assure them of our prayers," the resolution added.

Jacob Gartenhaus, field secretary of the division of Jewish work, told the board "it would seem that the devil has let loose all of his fury in a last effort to destroy the 17,000,000 Jews of the world."

See Ray of Hope.

"But through all this horrible persecution, we see a ray of hope, for never in history have the Jewish people realized their utter helplessness and dependence on Jehovah and there is where our opportunity lies."

Much of the delegates' time was devoted to study and appraisal of the report submitted by Dr. Noble Y. Beall, field secretary of negro missions. His report showed more than 3,000 negro students active in the board's work in 17 sectarian and non-sectarian southern colleges drew a formal resolution from the board praising "the work in the field of inter-racial co-operation" and commending "the wise policy and program of Dr. Beall."

Dr. Beall's report showed the division had 37 Bible teachers, teacher and pastor missionaries at work in the colleges. In addition, 160 of the college students filled pulpits during the year.

Many Missions.

A report submitted by Dr. J. B. Lawrence, who was reappointed the board's executive treasurer revealed to delegates that the board now employs the largest number of missionaries in its history, 397, in 18 states, Panama and Cuba.

Distribution, according to Lawrence, is as follows: Mexican and Spanish, chiefly in Texas, 115; Cuban, 72; French, chiefly in Louisiana, 24; Indian, in Florida, Alabama, North Carolina, Mississippi, Arizona, New Mexico and Oklahoma, 72; negro, 40; Italian, 12; Jewish, 2; Chinese, 4; Panamanians, 7; for the deaf, 6, and other groups, 42.

Salaries for the missionaries, Dr. Lawrence said, were provided for next year, but no extension of the work could be undertaken except through contributions in excess of the budget of $513,000 which was approved at the one-day session.

Loan Ceiling Raised.

Delegates voted to raise the maximum loan that could be made on a church from $15,000 to $25,000. B. M. Callaway, chairman of the church building loan fund reported that the real value of the fund was the greatest in the history of the board, $1,350,000.

"It is the belief of the committee that the fund is in the best of condition," Callaway told the board, "with less than $60,000 of the total loans of $1,045,892 uncollectable." Remainder of the fund he reported was in cash or invested securities. Chairman B. L. Bugg, of the investment committee, reported the board's investments were in excellent shape, and had shown no loss in the last ten years.

A report submitted by Dr. M. N. McCall, superintendent of the board's work in Cuba since 1905, showed that congregations are larger on the island than ever before and that baptisms have increased 30 per cent.

Temple at Havana.

"The most significant improvement to property in Cuba during the year was the completion of the Baptist Temple in Havana at a cost of $50,000," McCall added, "situated in the heart of Cuba's capital this three-story simulated stone building is a beautiful and commodious headquarters for the mission work in Cuba."

Officers and committeemen in addition to Fuller and Lawrence were unanimously re-elected. Atlantans include Dr. K. O. White, vice president; M. A. Cooper, B. M. Callaway, B. L. Bugg, G. F. Garrison, Frank B. Graham, J. Lon Duckworth, A. W. Jackson, A. T. Allen, C. J. Davis, Horace S. Collingsworth, and W. Lee Cutts; A. J. Moncrief, Decatur; Z. E. Barron, Hapeville, and W. A. Duncan, East Point.

Fact Finders Tell Farmer What Makes His Mare Go

Needs Are More Acres in Cultivation, More Yield Per Acre, More Diversified Crops, More Year-Round Work and a More Scientific Approach.

Editor's Note: This is the second of a series of six releases by the Citizens' Fact-Finding Movement dealing constructively, in detail, with Georgia's pressing farm problems. The purpose is to double Georgia's farm income will be advanced by study of the facts presented in these releases. They constitute spot news of the first magnitude.

How to make Georgia's farm income equal the national average—and thus add $148,000,000 yearly to the flow of prosperity to Georgians—is the definite question raised by a report on agriculture to the Citizens' Fact-Finding Movement. Practical ways to solve the problem are given.

The report, prepared by a group of well-known Georgians under the chairmanship of Dean Paul W. Chapman, of the College of Agriculture of the University of Georgia, also embraces the best opinion of more than 1,000 persons well informed in farm problems.

Then specific suggestions are made. They are:

1. Increase acres of cropland per person. Georgia farmers have only one-third as much cropland per person from which to derive a cash income as the farm families of the middle west.

2. Increase yields per acre. Yields per acre represent an important factor in farm profits. Georgia's yields per acre of the staple crops are approximately two-thirds the national average.

3. Increase sources of income. Fifty-five per cent of the cash farm income of Georgia during 15 recent years came from cotton; this is too much to come from any one source.

4. Increase days of labor. Without livestock and winter crops few farmers can work enough days in the year to make an income equal to the national average.

5. Increase use of power. We live in the age of power and machinery. It is the use of power that has made American industry; it is power and machinery that enables the western farmer to produce more per man than any farmer who has ever lived in any period in the world's history.

6. Improve quality of products. Quality and price are correlated; the largest returns come from the best products. There is a quality factor in every product; in cotton it is grade and staple.

7. Grade and pack properly. All products should be graded by United States standards. For all products we should strive for the efficiency in packing and grading attained by the growers of Georgia peaches and apples.

8. Increase land-use resources. We have twice as many acres in Georgia farms as are cultivated. Increase returns from these acres by developing productive year-around pastures, and by following wise forest management policies in the growing of trees.

9. Control insects, parasites and diseases. We lose millions of dollars in cash income yearly through failure to control insects, parasites and diseases. Boll weevils destroy our cotton; parasites reduce the prices paid for our hogs; diseases reduce grain yields by one-third.

10. Support Farm Agencies and Organizations. Farm agencies, services and organizations are in existence which, if used and supported, can increase the income of individual farmers.

The Fact-Finding Movement is not an organization but a union of endeavor carried on by 17 state organizations, including Civitan, Kiwanis, Rotary, Lions, Pilot and Exchange Clubs, Congress of Parents and Teachers, Council of Church Women, Education Association, Federation of Women's Clubs, United Georgia Farmers' Association of University Women, Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Home Demonstration Council, League of Women Voters, Library Association and Press Association.

KIRKLAND HAD TASK FILLING ADA'S ROLE

14 Declined Part in 'Tobacco Road.'

When "Tobacco Road," now playing at the Erlanger theater, first was presented, Jack Kirkland, producer, found the role of Ada, the wife, the most difficult to cast.

Fourteen well-known women declined the part because they did not wish to play a pellastric wife. Only 10 days before the premiere Margaret Wyckherly accepted it and acted it for two and a half years on Broadway.

Her successor was Patricia Quinn, seen here last season as Sister Bessie, the evangelist. Ann Dery played it for three years and then left the cast to go with Ethel Barrymore in "The Farm of Three Echoes." The current Broadway portrayer is Leora Thatcher.

On tour, the role of Ada has been acted by Mary Servino, Florence Gerald, and Sara Perry, the last named, who is playing it here, being in her third season as the pathetic woman whose only desire is "a stylish dress to be buried in."

ROAD DEPARTMENT OUT OF DEBT—RIVERS

Says Highway Unit Now on Cash Basis for First Time in Years.

Current debts of the State Highway Department were fully paid on November 25 and the department will be out of debt on January 1 for the first time "in many years," Governor Rivers asserted yesterday.

Saying when he assumed office in January, 1937, the department was $3,500,000 in debt beyond anticipated revenues during the period for contracted construction, Rivers continued:

"I have been trying to wipe out all these old debts and put the Highway Department on a current cash basis. Highway funds that have been impounded for other purposes will be repaid, unless it develops that the diversion was entirely legal."

Rivers impressed an additional $850,000 Monday from road cash in the treasury. He is using it to complete payments on teachers' November salaries.

He deposited to the road department's credit in the treasury last Friday $2,650,000 gained from sale of road refunding bonds and yesterday released to the department $1,850,000 of this cash to use in paying current debts.

REGENTS BLOCKED IN SALE OF BONDS

Arnall Says Request Cannot Be Used for Buildings.

Bonds bought with money willed units of the university system by the late Governor Joseph M. Terrell, of Meriwether county, cannot be sold and the proceeds invested in dormitory buildings, Attorney General Ellis Arnall informed the State Board of Regents yesterday.

The regents had sought to use the money in this way at G. S. C. W. in Milledgeville and then to repay it within 11 years with the income derived from renting the rooms to students.

The attorney general ruled that under terms of the will, the money could be invested only in municipal or county bonds of Georgia and that the income was to be used for loans to worthy students, unless a court order is obtained granting the breaking of the will in this respect.

$9,900,000 City Income In 1940 Is Predicted

Fulton County Arranges To Sell $500,000 of 1939
Tax F. I. As.

Fulton county arranged yesterday to sell $500,000 worth of 1939 tax f. i. as, before the end of the year to avoid drastic reductions in the 1940 county budget which has to be made up and adopted by January under the new budget law.

Hughes Spalding, county attorney, worked out details of the plan whereby the Interstate Bond Company, through George Streit, will purchase tax executions due immediately after December 20. The clearing house banks of Atlanta are to aid in financing the purchase, Spalding said.

The county commissioners and T. Earl Suttles, county tax collector, agreed to Spalding's plan yesterday at a special conference on tax matters called because of the necessity for collecting the greatest amount of cash possible this year in order to maintain customary county services when the new budget for 1940 is made.

Law's Requirements.
The law requires the county to budget for 1940 at less than the actual amount of cash taken in this year.

Under Spalding's arrangement, the mechanical difficulty of selling 1939 f. i. as, will be overcome by allowing the purchasing company to list the possible f. i. as. it would buy, beginning immediately. Then, if the tax bills selected by the company are paid voluntarily by taxpayers before December 20, the county will collect and the company will purchase other tax executions which it has selected. Streit notified the commissioners his company would take up to $500,000 on f. i. as. based on real estate, at no discount.

"This sale will solve the county's financial dilemma and will allow the county to make a budget for next year comparable to the 1939 budget," Spalding said.

James L. Respass, auditor, who had estimated that on the basis of prior year collections the county would have to cut $831,000 off its 1939 budget, explained that by collecting $500,000 in 1939 and applying it to debts which would have ordinarily been paid out of 1940 revenue, the county will have the equivalent of $1,000,000 more in its 1940 finance sheet.

Begin Job.

The commissioners began the job of making the 1940 budget by fixing the salaries of former fee officers of the county yesterday, because the law requires them to be set at least 30 days before the first of the year. All the salaries were set at the same as for 1939. They refused, however, a request for a raise for Courtland Gilbert, secretary of the planning commission, agreed with Commissioner Troy Chastain that no salary adjustments should be granted until the 1940 budget is made up "and we see exactly where we are."

Ed Almand, chairman, asserted he was going to recommend a number of salary raises when the time came.

Spalding Warns.

Spalding warned the commissioners that the "way the county operates in 1940" sets the standard for the next five years and that "if you go bust next year" the new budget law will automatically sharply curtail all county activities.

The county's law, like the city's budget law, requires that budgets be made one per cent less each year until the budget is made up at 95 per cent of the amount of cash actually collected in the preceding year.

FULTON GRAND JURY INDICTS SIX YOUTHS

Ages Range From 16 to 20;
Robbery or Larceny
Charges Voted.

Six youths, 20 years old or younger, were named in indictments returned by the Fulton grand jury yesterday.

Michael Prater, 19, was charged with six robberies and one assault with intent to rob, and Jim E. Tice, also 19, was accused on one robbery count jointly with Prater. Both were indicted for possessing a pistol without a license.

Jack Mitchell, 16, J. P. Screws, 16, and Marvin Tallant, 17, were indicted jointly for larceny of an automobile. They are accused of stealing the car of Irving S. Nathan, a lawyer, on November 18.

James B. Reeves, 20, was named in a two-count robbery indictment, alleging he took $2.85 from Jerome Wilmer and 50 cents from Ernest White.

Prater was accused of robbing G. W. Hallmark (with Jim Tice), J. M. Phelps, J. H. Trainer, H. L. Bedenbaugh, Mrs. Lizzie Fowler and S. D. Richenbacher Sr., and of attempting to rob G. W. Ryder. The money obtained in all the robberies did not total $200.

BROWDER SPEAKS TO YALE STUDENTS

Noisy Crowd Threatens To Overtake Communist
Leader's Auto.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 28.—(AP)—Earl Browder, the Communist leader who was barred from speaking at Harvard, Princeton, and Dartmouth, gave his views on

"America and the present war" to a Yale student audience today, declaring that "the only way to peace is to take power out of the hands of the capitalists."

He spoke in an atmosphere almost as noisy as New York's Union Square, time honored forum for left wing orators, and when he left the hall by a rear door about 300 boisterous students milled around his automobile with cries of "turn it over." A dozen brawny arms lifted one side of the car high in the air but soon desisted and no damage was done.

A crowd, estimated at 4,000, largely students, attracted to the scene by the unsuccessful efforts of New Haven veterans, Mayor John W. Murphy and the Connecticut American Legion to have President Seymour of Yale seek cancellation of Browder's appearance, was unable to get into the hall.

Morocco has boosted its consumption tax on gasoline nearly 50 per cent.

Jacket Plays Puzzle Bulldogs; Tech Primes Razzle Dazzle

All in the Game
—by Jack Troy

Just where is the best football played, anyway? It might work out, all right, that a southern football team will be found in every bowl—Rose, Sugar, Orange and Sun—and this would be indicative, on the face of it, that the game below the Mason and Dixon line is not to be taken lightly.

And yet when you start looking around and checking such matters as intersectional games, one finds the south third best.

The dear old east came off best in intersectional gridiron this year, with the southwest next and the south trailing in third place.

Of course, you don't always consider total results. Fordham, one of the east's better teams, was bowled over by two southeastern foes, Alabama and Tulane. Villanova was dropped by Auburn. Boston College, now one of the so-called bowl eligibles, lost to Florida. Clemson defeated Navy. Duke beat Colgate and Syracuse. Tulane also romped on Columbia. North Carolina defeated both N. Y. U. and Pennsylvania.

The south, as a whole, was third in total results, however, with 19 wins against 21 defeats and two ties.

Eastern eleven took part in 57 intersectional games and won 32, lost 24 and tied one.

The southwest broke even, winning and losing 15 and having three ties.

The record of the pass-conscious eleven of the southwest may come as a bit of a surprise, popular fancy having it that the Texans are better against each other. But the intersectional record fails to show it. They've really done a little better than the south against outside foes—out where the west begins.

Right here in the Southeastern conference, however, outstanding intersectional games dropped were by hairbreadth margins. Tech lost to Notre Dame on a field goal and N. Y. U. pulled out by one point over Georgia. Total results don't always tell the whole story. As a game by game proposition, the Southeastern conference did very well against outside opposition. And the record would have been better, on the whole, chances are, if Tennessee had elected to play a couple of intersectional foes.

WILL HISTORY REPEAT?

It undoubtedly is the goal of the Tennessee Volunteers to march into the Rose Bowl not only with an unbeaten and untied, but also an unscored-on team.

This would make for a strange happening. Duke last represented the south with a team that had not had its goal line crossed. And, indeed, for more than 58 minutes of the New Year's day game, it was still as pure as the driven snow on adjacent mountain tops. A last-minute pass carried the California Trojans to victory. Undoubtedly, the Trojans have power enough to win the remaining games against Washington and U. C. L. A. No doubt Tennessee has the power, speed and smartness to finish in front of Kentucky and Auburn.

Tennessee may find it difficult to keep the goal line inviolate against the Wildcats and the Tigers, but you can bet they'll put up a lot of effort to do so. And if they accomplish the feat of going to the bowl with an unscored-on team, following Duke, it will be something else again. And it will give the powerful Trojans something to think about again.

For, unlike the Duke team of last year, the present unscored-on Tennessee team is capable of doing a lot of scoring on its own.

Two bowl situations could work out in almost identical fashion. For instance, Southern Cal has been tied. And so has Tulane. So if Cal and Tennessee tie up and unbeaten and untied Texas A. and M. and Tulane meet in the Sugar Bowl, the only difference would come in Tennessee being unscored on—if such is the case after the Kentucky and Auburn games.

POPULAR QUESTION OF THE DAY.

"How bad is Tech going to beat Georgia?" That's the popular question of the day. No one around here seems to be entertaining any idea that Georgia might beat or tie Tech.

The question always goes unanswered. A feeble attempt usually is made to point out that "Tech seems a little better," but nothing by way of a commitment is expressed. For who would be so bold as to say how a Tech and Georgia game is coming out after all the things that have gone before in the series? There's no way of knowing.

Ferdinand's corner: Forrest Adair stood out in defeat in the recent McCallie-Baylor game in Chattanooga. . . . Adair threw a pass for McCallie's only touchdown. . . . It has been a strenuous year for Forrest (Abe) Adair, of Atlanta. . . . The McCallie backfield star is his son, and he has had quite a time following two teams, McCallie and Tech. . . . Bucher Scott, Coach Bill Alexander's stepson, was a standout at guard for McCallie during the season. . . . Bill Lufner, who has been employed at the Piedmont Driving Club as tennis professional for the past six years, will serve in a similar capacity at the Charlotte (N. C.) Country Club in the future. . . . He is now coaching at Presbyterian. . . . Banks McFadden, of Clemson, is possibly the best all-around back in the south and highly deserving of All-America. . . . From all one can gather, Billy Paschal, of Tech High, is in line for the all-southern prep team. . . . It's just as easy to obtain tickets for the "Gone With the Wind" premiere as it is to

GEORGIA STAKES HOPES SATURDAY ON FIRST ELEVEN

Reserves Ailing; No More Rough Work Bill- ed This Week.

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 28.—Georgia Tech's tricky offense, as offered by the Georgia freshmen, completely baffled the Bulldogs varsity in an hour's scrimmage here this afternoon but despite the fact the Red and Black looked terrible, Coach Wallace Butts said there would be no more rough work this week.

Jim Todd and Brooker Blanton, freshmen backs, ripped off long gains throughout the scrimmage and the regularity with which the Bulldogs picked up yardage caused Coach Butts to wonder:

"What will Howard Ector, Johnny Bosch and the rest of the Tech regulars do to us if the freshmen can gain like that?"

BANS ROUGH WORK. The stocky Bulldog mentor said there could be no more rough work despite the fact his club needs to look at the Tech plays under game conditions again.

"We can take no chances of the boys not being physically able to go Saturday and we're just afraid to risk any more rough work," he said.

Tomorrow's drill will be devoted largely to pass defense, a review of the Bulldog plays and work against the Tech plays as the freshmen run them in slow motion.

Several Bulldogs are still showing the effects of last week's bruising tussle with Auburn and although Captain Vassa Cate, who injured his ankle against the Tigers, was in uniform, he did not take part in the scrimmage. Ben Boone and Nub Welch, both sophomore reserve, were running at the wingback spots.

Up to Regulars. The scrimmage definitely proved one thing, and that is the regulars' lineemen are going to have to do almost full-time service in Saturday's battle.

That means Smiley Johnson and Walter Wilfong will be in there most of the way at guards, with Charles Williams and Wyatt Posey at tackles. Starting ends will be selected from Jimmy Skipworth, John Stegeman and Knox Eldredge on the right side and Alex McCaskill, Green Keltner and Tommy Malone on the opposite flank. Coach Butts probably won't decide who will start until the last minute. In the backfield Jim Fordham is a certainty at fullback and Bob Nowell likely will be at blocking back. Cliff Kimsey or Heyward Allen will open a tailback and in all probability Captain Cate will answer the opening whistle at wingback.

Trojans or Wave Can Topple Vols, Says Ex-Irish Star

NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 28.—(P)—Tennessee's Volunteers, ready to march into a major bowl game, will crumble before a mightier offense than they yet have seen if they meet Southern California or Tulane, Larry "Moon" Mullins declared today.

Mullins, fullback on Knute Rockne's last and greatest football team at Notre Dame in 1930 and now head coach at Loyola University of the South, spoke as one who has seen them all.

He's right next door to Tulane, and saw Tennessee whip Louisiana State University 20-0 a few Saturdays ago. Last Thursday he watched Southern California in a three-hour workout here before the Trojans went up to South Bend to defeat Notre Dame, 20-12.

"It will take a team with a lot of straightaway power to tumble Tennessee. One basing its offense on deception will not beat the Vols. It will have to drive hard straight over them."

"Tennessee is smart and alert. It recovers quickly and keeps its feet. But Southern California has tremendous manpower. Tennessee would be unable to hold the Trojans' running and passing attack."

Mullins asserted he believed Southern California "has the greatest collection of material I ever have seen on one football team."

"In addition to power, the Trojans have a passing attack, and it is a team that will gamble."

"Tulane probably would take Tennessee sheerly on power. It strikes most effectively and almost entirely on the ground. I doubt whether Tennessee could stop this devastating offense, and I do feel Tulane could stop the Vols' running attack."

"Of course it's entirely possible that after New Year's Day we might have learned that Texas A. and M. has the best team in the country."

Donnaud Is Winner In Candler Tourney Mrs. Albert Donnaud won first place Tuesday morning on the Candler Park course in the regular weekly one-day play of the Candler Park Women's Golf Association. Mrs. Donnaud finished on the 21st green in the flag tourney.

Mrs. J. H. McDonald was just one stroke away from the 19th green for second place.

HE PLAYS END FOR BULLDOGS

Regarded as one of the best defensive ends on the Georgia team, Tommy Malone will be a definite threat to Tech ball carriers Saturday. Tommy, a sophomore, is the son of "Punk" Malone, Bulldog star of many years ago.

Aggie-Purple Aerial Battle Is Expected

Injured Players Back in Fold; Title Game Set Friday at Ponce de Leon.

Although Howard Haire Jr., a tackle, and Clint Castleberry, a halfback, have rejoined the Boys' High football practices, Coaches Shorty Doyal and Dwight Keith are going ahead with their plans of using the same combinations which turned back Lanier Tech High and Enslay High in succession, in Friday's state championship game with Monroe Aggies at Ponce de Leon park.

Boys' High coaches and officials have always been on the superstitious side, carrying buckeyes and rabbit feet in their pockets and wearing derbies from time to time, to break a jinx or extend a winning streak.

Loss of several players by injuries has hurt the team, but since it has carried on winning, the coaches, still wearing those derbies, will take no chances Friday, certainly not with the starting combination.

GOOD FRIENDS. Shorty Doyal and Red Barron have been the closest of friends for many years, dating back to the Georgia Tech team in the early 20's, but on the football field, they forget all those past remembrances and fight for every inch of ground.

They even trained their squads together some years ago at Mountain City in north Georgia. So football games between Monroe and Boys' High have long been regarded as naturals and second only to Boys' High-Tech High rivalry.

Monroe won the state championship last year, but did not return for many years, dating back to the Georgia Tech team in the early 20's, but on the football field, they forget all those past remembrances and fight for every inch of ground.

RED'S NEPHEW. Claude Barron, a nephew of Red, Carter and Pat, is a halfback, just like the famous Barron Red-Heads who have preceded him. Paul Shires, a brother of Tennessee's Abe Shires, plays tackle and is rated one of the best in the state.

Ted Forbes and George Gourley are two excellent passers on the Monroe squad and since Boys' High has held every opponent except three scoreless, passes are most likely Monroe's chief weapon.

Boys' High hasn't had the success of former years with the aerials, though passes beat Tech for the city championship.

Kicking is likely to play a great part in the game with Jake Cox, the best in the state, and Ralph Kennerly punting for the Purples, and Forbes and Gourley kicking for Monroe.

Race Entries Increase For Lakewood Event

Twenty-two entries eligible to start in the Zone A finals and Zone B qualifications to the Sunday Lakewood 50-mile stock car auto race, will attempt to make the remaining 15 positions open for the second annual half-century grind.

They are Bill Sockwell, Milt Frankhauser, Ted Lockton, Speedy Goff, Bobby Minus, Bert Hellmuller, Guber Soseber, Red Singleton, Joe Littlejohn, Fontella Flock, Paul Goins, Bob Byrnes, Cannonball Brown, Bob Hughes, Jack Cox, Hugh Adamson, Manly Moore, Tip Lanthier, Hugh Dixon, Tommie Elmore, High Jenkins and Bobby Johnston.

SCRIMMAGE SET AT GRANT FIELD THIS AFTERNOON

Butch Aderhold Only Cripple Definitely Out of Game.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY. Tech's light work for the Georgia game continued yesterday as Coach Bill Alexander sent his charges through mild drills on signal running and defense against Bulldog formations as presented by the Red Devils.

The only scrimmage of the week will be held today and it will not be as rough as previous Wednesday knocking sessions. Overworked first-stringers will not see much action, leaving the bulk of the scrimmage up to reserves.

The Jackets opened yesterday's practice session by brushing up on their aerial attack. For half an hour, Johnny Bosch, Bobby Beers, Buck Shaw and Dick Bates shot passes to flying ends and backs, indicating the Techs may unleash some of their famed razzle-dazzle tricks Saturday.

WORK ON DEFENSE. Defense was next on the program and a greater part of the day was devoted to stopping Georgia's Jim Fordham, Truck Kimsey, Vassa Cate and Heyward Allen. With Ralph Plaster running at Fordham's spot on the Bee team, the Jacket varsity worked defense in a dummy scrimmage.

Then the varsity did some more work on its own offense, two teams working against the third in another dummy drill.

Butch Arnold, regular guard, is the only cripple definitely out of the traditional clash, Coach Alexander yesterday the hard-charging veteran's knee hasn't come around and he would be unable to play. Other injured men, Center Jim Wright, Tackle Eston Lackey, Wingback Billy Gibson and End George Webb, will be ready for the Bulldogs if they continue to show the improvement noted in the last two days.

MUST TAKE CARE.

The Jackets, while not in any sense of the word taking Georgia lightly, are in the midst of their eighth week's work of the season. With five men on the injured list, Coach Alex took no chances and called off yesterday's scrimmage. And today's will be easy—at least for first-team members.

Older members of the Tech team remember the last two years when Phil Shu, V. M. I. captain, fought them to ties and the Jackets don't mean to let it happen again.

The game is already a sellout. More than 30,000, a figure boosted by the erection of all available temporary seats, will see the contest.

DILLMAN, CORBY GRAPPLE FRIDAY

Villains clash in the wrestling headliner at Sports Arena Friday night. Dynamite Joe Dillman, the wild Greek from Indianapolis, and Bob Corby, who formerly carried the underdog Georgia Tech line an attractive three-bout card. Corby has lost only one match here in 30 starts while Dillman is unbeaten in three appearances and has informed promoters that after Friday night he will be head bad man hereabouts and that Corby will be only a memory.

Jack McAdams, a business-like performer who is always good for a tip-top performance, takes on Larry Tillman, aggressive Texan, in the semi-final.

Babe Dusek, a newcomer from Omaha, and Charlie Keene, St. Louis husky, meet in the opening event at 8:30.

Chicago Prep Game To Attract 100,000

CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—(P)—Chicago takes its high school football seriously. Soldiers' Field will be the scene Saturday of the high school championship game between Mt. Carmel, Catholic champion, and Fenner High, public school champion, and a crowd of close to 100,000 is expected.

Part in the game with Jake Cox, the best in the state, and Ralph Kennerly punting for the Purples, and Forbes and Gourley kicking for Monroe.

Cavette Is Named Outstanding Foe By Duke Players

DURHAM, N. C., Nov. 28.—Neill Cavette, Georgia Tech guard, who is a great punter, was the only unanimous choice on an all-opponents team picked today by 29 members of Duke University's football team.

Robert Isom, Tech end, and Dick Cassiano, Pitt halfback, ran next to Cavette's perfect score of 20, by getting 17 votes each. George Sturtevant, North Carolina quarterback, and Ed (Ty) Coon, N. C. State tackle, polled 16 votes each.

Closes balloting was at fullback, where Phil Shu, V. M. I. captain, nosed out Joe Hoague, of Colgate, by one vote. Wake Forest tied with Pitt in landing the most places, each getting three.

The team, with the votes polled by each: Robert Isom, Georgia Tech (17), Dick Cassiano, Pittsburgh (12), Tackles—Edward Coon, N. C. State (16), and Rupter Pate, Wake Forest (15). Guards—Neill Cavette, Georgia Tech (20), and Rudy Gradiak, Pittsburgh (9). Center—John Pendergast, Wake Forest (15).

Quarterback—George Sturtevant, North Carolina (16).

Halfback—Dick Cassiano, Pittsburgh (17). Back—Ed (Ty) Coon, Wake Forest (12).

Fullback—Paul Shu, V. M. I. (11).

Polish Tennis Star Becomes Waitress

WARSAW, Nov. 28.—(P)—The internationally famed Polish woman tennis star, Jadwiga Jedzejowska, now is a waitress, one of several Polish athletic notables whose fortunes have been changed by the war.

Ja-Ja has accepted a job in a Warsaw restaurant which specializes in the famous "bigos," a Polish dish consisting of cabbage with small pieces of meat.

Her fellow waiters and waitresses include Ignacy Tloczynski, a Davis Cup tennis player, Janusz Kusocinski, a distance runner, and Mme. Maria Kwasniewska, Olympic javelin thrower.

Mlle. Jedzejowska early in the war went to the home of her parents in Krakow, and found them destitute. She had to look for a job.

Peach Blossom Tilt Set December 9

A "Peach Blossom" game with Morris Brown as host and sponsor will be played at Ponce de Leon park December 9 between Morris Brown and Virginia State College, undefeated in the past two years. It's the biggest colored football game ever planned for Atlanta and already several motorcades are being planned from near-by cities.

Williamson Says Tech Should Triumph Easily

By PAUL R. WILLIAMSON. This is the last week of the 1939 season with more than a scattering of games. However, that scattering the following week will include such affairs as Southern California vs. U. C. L. A. and Auburn vs. Tennessee, both of which may have important bearing on the post-season bowl games.

Because this is the last big week of the regular season the current Williamson ratings should be almost sure-shot figures for correct predicting, since they are derived from almost the whole season's play. However, the same thing applied with almost equal force last week—and look what Michigan did to Ohio State (21-14), Nebraska to Oklahoma (13-7), S. M. U. to Baylor (21-0), William and Mary to previously undefeated Richmond U. (7-0), Washington to Oregon (20-13), South Carolina to Miami of Florida (7-0), U. S. Marines to Temple (13-0) after Temple had been picked to defend this season's El Paso Sun Bowl, Mississippi State to Mississippi (18-7), Penn State to Pittsburgh (10-0), Yale to Harvard (20-7), and so on.

In spite of all that, the System could have done worse than its 81 per cent in 128 games discounting ties.

This week we pick from the hardest battles: New Mexico over Nevada, San Jose over Drake, Chattanooga over Mercer, Howard College over Birmingham-Southern, Centenary over Louisiana Tech, Citadel over Wofford, Elon over Guilford, Wake Forest over Davidson, Texas A. & M. over Texas, U. C. L. A. over Washington State, Hardin Simmons over Howard Payne, Texas Tech over Loyola of the South, Auburn over Florida, Dartmouth over Stanford, Georgia Tech over Georgia, Baylor over Rice, Southern California over Washington, Boon U. over Tampa, S. M. U. over T. C. U., and Tulane over L. S. U.

Big Leaguers Seek Government Relief

$7,500 a Year Cleveland Player Denied Claim For $15 Per Week.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 28.—(P)—Ken Keltner, Cleveland Indians' infielder, batted .000 today in the Social Security League.

He fanned in an effort to bat out a vacation bonus of $240 unemployment compensation insurance.

Keltner, who makes around $7,500 a year as Cleveland's third baseman, applied for state job insurance of $15 a week on the contention he is unemployed this winter.

The Ohio Unemployment Compensation Bureau said no. It explained he was under a year's contract and so had not separated from his employment.

At his Milwaukee home Keltner said: "I made the claim because I thought I had compensation coming. I am taking the claim out to save everybody a lot of trouble."

The State Bureau, which had disallowed the claim prior to Keltner's announcement of withdrawal, said benefits also had been denied two players for Columbus of the American Association.

Applicants who satisfy the bureau they have no jobs but are willing to work are entitled to $15 a week up to a maximum of 18 weeks. Contributions to the fund come solely from employers, who forward 3 per cent of each worker's salary.

Several Chick Players Have Filed Claims

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 28.—(P) Several Southern league baseballers apparently are already drawing government unemployment compensation money for the months they're not toiling on the diamond.

Frank Longinotti, secretary of the Memphis club, said today five or six Memphis players filed claims at the rate of $15 a week, and he had received notice from the state unemployment compensation office that allowances were being computed. One claimant lives in St. Louis, one in New Orleans, two in Mississippi and two in Chicago, Longinotti said. He would not disclose their names.

At Nashville, Chief Deputy Governor C. Boyd, of the unemployment compensation office, said he "understood" several Nashville players had been drawing jobless compensation.

Rather than draw this money, Longinotti said, many players prefer winter jobs paying more than $15 a week, which disqualifies them for government grants.

ELECTRIC RATES IN BIRMINGHAM REDUCED $700,000

Private Utility Move Puts Costs Within Range of TVA Yardstick; Industrial Spur.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 28.—(P)—Reduction of rates by Birmingham Electric Company to schedules within the range of TVA's "yardstick rates" was applauded here today as a spur to industrial activity and a saving to consumers without loss of city tax revenues.

C. E. Oakes, president of Birmingham Electric, announced the new rates, approved today by the Alabama Public Service Commission, would result in a saving of $700,000 annually to customers in the Birmingham area.

The new schedule, effective December 1, approximates TVA rates plus 10 per cent for residential consumers and plus 20 per cent for commercial users. This is a reduction of approximately 14 per cent for residential customers and 10 to 33 per cent for commercial customers, Oakes estimated.

Approval of the new rates was termed "a big thing for Birmingham" by City Commission President James M. Jones.

"To enjoy these rates," Jones declared, "citizens of Birmingham do not have to make a huge investment in a municipally-owned electric plant and run the risk of having it go sour and then having to support the plant."

Named Probation Officer

CARRELL LARMORE.

CARRELL LARMORE GIVEN COURT POST

Appointed Probation Officer for Fulton County Juvenile Tribunal.

Carrell Larmore, personnel assistant in the employment division of the Works Progress Administration in Atlanta, has been appointed probation officer for the Fulton county juvenile court by Judge Garland M. Watkins, Miss Lottie Ramspeck, chief probation officer, announced yesterday.

Larmore was one of a number of applicants who took competitive examinations for the position given under the direction of Henry B. Mays, newly-appointed director of the Fulton County Department of Public Welfare. Mays was assisted by Dr. Hugh Harris, of Emory University; J. R. Turman, federal probation officer for the fifth district of Georgia, and M. E. Coleman, assistant superintendent of schools.

For the past year and a half Larmore has been continuously engaged in different phases of social welfare work for the Works Progress Administration. In his college and WPA work he has had considerable experience in teaching, directing and training young people.

GOVERNMENT GROUP TO FETE RAMSPECK

Employee Chapters Will Give Dinner-Dance Saturday Night.

Local chapters of the American Federation of Governmental Employees will honor Congressman Ramspeck at a dinner-dance at the Ansley hotel at 6:30 o'clock Saturday night.

On the program are R. M. Millikan, of Hapeville, chairman of the Allied Federal Council, of Atlanta; General Chairman J. F. Bennett, of Washington, national president, Railway Mail Association; Harold E. Smith, of Atlanta, national vice president, American Federation of Government Employees; Homer W. Smith, of Atlanta, state president, Georgia Federation of Post Office Clerks, and George L. Googe, southern representative of the AFL.

J. A. Sligh, secretary of Local 32, National Federation of Post Office Clerks, will be toastmaster.

VILLAGES ARE CUT OFF BY HOLLAND FLOODS

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 28.—(P)—A number of villages were isolated and highway traffic was interrupted today by flooding rivers in southeast and central Netherlands, where some sections already inundated as a defense measure.

Heavy November rains sent the Rhine, Waal, Maas and smaller rivers to high levels. Some villages may be reached only by boat and a number of bridges have been closed.

through the wooded, somewhat hilly countryside. Fear was increased by the presence of two chill streams in the neighborhood into which she might have fallen.

As night fell the efforts were redoubled. Calls for aid went forth, and at least 200 persons went through roads and gulleys, open country and thickets, using flashlights and lanterns, and shouting loudly at frequent intervals.

Chill increased. The temperature eventually going to 34 degrees, with unceasing wind, and it was believed the missing infant, if still uninjured, would succumb to the exposure. Large predatory foxes prevalent in the "vicinity" were an added hazard.

With morning, more volunteers were enlisted, including 20 or more students of Mount Berry College. It was nearly 3 o'clock when the small fugitive was discovered in the nest of leaves.

The house from which she strayed is near the old unpaved Dalton road, at a point about a mile from the paved Chattanooga highway. She apparently had gone down the road and wandered into the woods. When found she was within a quarter-mile of the paved highway.

COLONEL BURNETT DIES IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—(P)—Colonel Charles Burnett, former chief of the War Department's Bureau of Insular Affairs with the rank of brigadier general, died last night at Walter Reed hospital. He had been ill for more than two months.

A native of Concord, Tenn., Burnett was 62 and served in the army for more than 42 years. His last post was as executive officer for the chief of cavalry here.

SAFETY DRIVE SET FOR HIGHWAYS

Troopers Will Seek To Cut Toll in December.

State troopers this year will redouble their efforts to prevent a recurrence of last December's traffic toll of 72 deaths, Safety Commissioner Lon Sullivan said yesterday following a meeting of the State Board of Public Safety.

Sullivan said only routine matters were taken up at the meeting with the exception of the plans for greater highway vigilance during December. He said an effort would be made to cancel all leaves and passes of troopers during the Christmas season to provide as close highway patrolling as possible.

Last year's record of 72 deaths in December compared with 102 in December of 1937.

5 Good Reasons To Change To a Modern Electric Range

- 1. IT'S CLEAN The Electric Range is by nature the cleanest of all—flameless, smokeless, sootless—free from greasy smudge and filthy film. Range, pots and pans, curtains, walls and ceiling stay cleaner!
- 2. IT'S FAST There is no limit to the speed an Electric Range could attain, but foods require fixed cooking time. An Electric Range is made to cook food as fast as it can be cooked properly—fast as any range!

- 3. IT'S ACCURATE Only electric heat is absolutely constant and accurately controlled. This makes possible waterless cooking; the same results every time.
- 4. IT'S SAFER Flameless, an Electric Range uses no oxygen—leaves kitchen air fresh and pure.
- 5. IT'S ECONOMICAL On lowest electric rates in our history, it costs no more to cook electrically!

The Change is 5 Times Faster Today Than It Was Six Years Ago!

The same five reasons why you should change to a modern Electric Range are the same ones responsible for the nation-wide change! And what a change!

In 1933 one Electric Range was bought to every fifteen of the fuel-type stove so popular when Mother was a girl. In 1939, just six years later, that wide margin is a mere shadow of its former self, for now the count is only one to three!

This great change has come about chiefly because range-wise women know that it costs no more to enjoy the matchless superiorities of the Electric Range—its extra cleanliness, new speed, added safety, greater convenience, and downright low cost!

Before you buy any range, consider this all-important point: you buy a range to use for years; and to get your money's worth out of it, that range must not grow old before its time. It must remain modern in method as well as in convenience and style. It must give you all-round satisfaction throughout the years!

Before you buy any range, be sure you see the Electric Range and thoroughly investigate it from every standpoint. Compare it feature for feature; point for point. Find out exactly what it will cost you to use it for your cooking needs in your home.

Come to our store and get all the facts about the modern Electric Range. Play safe! Compare—then choose!

HOT WATER FOUR GALLONS 1¢

AUTOMATIC 24-HOUR SERVICE AT OUR LOWEST ELECTRIC RATE!

Only 1¢ a kilowatt hour—that's all it costs to run an Automatic Electric Water Heater, such as this 52-gallon Westinghouse model suitable for good-sized families. On a monthly basis, thousands of Georgia families spend no more than you probably pay for non-automatic water heating—$2 to $3 a month on the average! And they have hot water all the time, always ready for their beck and call! No waits... no shortage! You can enjoy this great home convenience, too—and just as economically! Come to our store and arrange to have it without further delay. Use our easy monthly payment plan. Don't delay!

Internationally-Known Visitors To Be Guests of Mr., Mrs. Ashcraft

By Sally Forth.

TODAY Sally Forth brings you news of visitors of international importance who will add charm and luster to the brilliant festivities revolving around the premiere of "Gone With the Wind." From Washington will come the Hon. and Mrs. William S. Culbertson, who will be joined here by Mr. and Mrs. Medley G. B. Whelpley, of New York, the four some to be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Ashcraft, at their home in Druid Hills.

The friendship of the distinguished visitors and their hosts began years ago. Mr. and Mrs. Ashcraft have often been guests at the Connecticut avenue home of the Culbertsons in the national capital, and also at the Bedford Hills estate of the Whelpleys in Westchester county, New York. They have planned a round of interesting parties, following the arrival of the visitors on December 14. In addition to the Junior League ball on the evening of that date, and the premiere on the following evening, Mr. and Mrs. Ashcraft will be hosts at the dinner-dance at the Piedmont Driving Club on Saturday evening, December 16. Sharing honors on this occasion will be Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Howe, of Jacksonville, who will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Claude McGinnis Jr. son and daughter of the Ashcrafts.

Mr. Culbertson is a former United States minister to Rumania and a former ambassador to Chile. He is also president of the Laurito Nitrate Corporation, of Chile, of which both Mr. Whelpley and Mr. Ashcraft are directors, and he rates more than half a column in "Who's Who," so important are his connections in government and business affairs. None the less distinguished is Mrs. Culbertson's position in social circles and organized women's work, both in this country and in South America.

Mr. Whelpley also rates half a column in "Who's Who." He is one of the ablest remaining partners of Guggenheim Brothers, those impressive and dominant factors in the copper field. He has an enviable war record, having served overseas in the World War, and is an outstanding figure in banking and financial circles. He and Mrs. Whelpley are the center of a charming circle of New York socialites, their Westchester estate being one of the showplaces of that section.

A GLORIOUS time is in store for Mary Virginia McConnell, who left yesterday for Jacksonville, Fla., where she is visiting Glory Sims Mott, who will make her formal bow to society this afternoon at an elaborate reception at her home in Ortega. The Atlanta belle will wear for the auspicious occasion a filmy pink net gown designed with a lame bodice of a matching shade.

On Thursday evening members of the Jacksonville, Debutante Club will be presented as a group at a brilliant ball to be staged at the Yacht Club. Mary Virginia will be listed among the popular visitors who will attend the affair.

On Friday evening Glory and her guests will be honored at a dinner-dance at the Ponte Vedra Club, at which Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Asbury and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Goodrich will be hosts.

Saturday evening the Atlanta deb will attend the Cotillion Club party at the Yacht Club, which will assemble several hundred members of Jacksonville society and many belles from neighboring states.

Sunday Mary Virginia will return to Atlanta to participate in the festive affairs planned for the following week.

THE social calendar will be enlivened by the presence of attractive Mary Frances Swann, of Tampa, Fla., whose arrival in this city on December 9 will form the inspiration for a round of festivities. Mary Frances will visit the Emory Cokes at their home on Valley road, and on the evening of her arrival will be honor guest at the party to be given by the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James S. Floyd, at

Will Choose a Blue-Eyed Suitor

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS.

MISS BETTY FITCH JONES.

The hand of charming Betty Fitch Jones, daughter of Colonel and Mrs. Clifford R. Jones, shows one of strongly marked individuality, quick and clever in thoughts and ideas.

The well-developed thumb and long, rounded index finger, indicates sympathy, tact and understanding. The angle at which the thumb joins the palm bespeaks one who has an unusually keen sense of justice, and the ability to overcome any obstacle that may be encountered.

A clear, deep line under the third finger, taken in connection with the shape and formation of the third finger called the Finger of Apollo, bestows unusual creative, artistic talent that could be turned to practical use. Interior decorating or dress designing would be her special medium of expression.

It is the type of hand strong in its convictions, staunch in its friendships. It is an ambitious hand, showing the entire nature unsatisfied until it has accomplished worth-while things.

Peering into the future, Betty's hand shows a very deep, clear line of marriage near the line of heart. With this indication, it is safe to predict that Betty will be an early and a happy bride. A group of small, almost indiscernible lines under the little finger and near the heart line, suggest that a blue-eyed suitor will be her choice.

On Friday Mrs. Jennings will analyze the hand of another Atlanta debutante exclusively for The Atlanta Constitution.

Miss Lydia Stanford and her guest, Miss Alice Slaton.

Miss Stanford and Miss Slaton are students at Sullins College in Virginia and spent the Thanksgiving holidays with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Stanford.

Miss Marion Keith To Be Entertained.

MARIETTA, Ga., Nov. 28.—Mrs. William Bell and Mrs. Bob Bean will entertain Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Bell for Miss Marion Keith, bride-elect. Miss Madge Schilling was hostess yesterday at a surprise handkerchief shower honoring Miss Keith. Miss Faith Poreh will honor Miss Keith at dinner Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. James Hancock will entertain at a bridge dinner on December 6 honoring Mr. and Mrs. George Montgomery, who were recently married in Adairsville. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fowler will compliment Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery at a bridge dinner on Saturday, December 9. Mrs. L. L. Blair and Miss Emma Katharine Anderson will honor Mrs. Montgomery at a luncheon on December 12.

Dr. and Mrs. Van Teem entertained recently at a bridge dinner. Present were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Turner, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Baird, Mr. and Mrs. Bolan Glover, Mr. and Mrs. Banks DuPre, Miss Jennie Tate, Mrs. L. L. Blair and James T. Anderson.

Mrs. L. L. Blair was hostess at a luncheon recently. Present were Mr. and Mrs. Mark Mayes, Mr. and Mrs. Al Strang, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Myers, Miss Jennie Tate and James T. Anderson.

Mrs. Lee Ashcraft and Mrs. Wright Bryan, of Atlanta, and Miss Helen Oppenlander, member of National Field Staff of Girl Scouts, will be honor guests at a tea to be given Friday by Mrs. M. L. McNeel Jr. at her home on Freyer drive.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Turner entertained recently at a family dinner at their home on Church street. Present were Rev. J. H. Patton, Tom Patton, Miss Etie Allen, Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Cortelyou, Miss

Miss Mary Bryan Will Be Feted

Miss Mary Bryan, whose marriage to William Noble Benedict will be an important event of December 9, continues to be entertained at many lovely parties.

Added to the list of those already announced is the tea at which Mrs. Rufus M. Darby will be hostess Monday afternoon at her home on Woodcrest avenue.

Miss Bryan and Mr. Benedict will share honors Wednesday evening, December 6, at the dinner party to be given by Mr. and Mrs. James Crawford in the new ballroom of the Capital City Club.

The bride-elect was honor guest yesterday at the luncheon given by Mrs. Warren Moise at her home on Brighton road.

An artistic arrangement of white chrysanthemums decorated the mantel in the living room, which was further decorated with colorful berries. In the dining room the table was centered with an antique crystal bowl filled with autumn fruit.

Present were Mesdames Moise, Shepard Bryan, Bonneau Ansley, Colquitt Carter, Rufus M. Darby, H. M. Beers Jr., Edward Ansley, Owen Peers, Misses Bryan, Lundy Sharp, Jane McMillan and Bright Bickert.

Junior Group Meets With Mrs. White.

Plans for renewed activity in the Lady Elizabeth Ogilthorpe Chapter of the Children of the American Revolution featured the meeting of the junior group of the Joseph Habersham Chapter of the D. A. R., which met with Mrs. James Ivey White. Mrs. Byron Kistner, past chairman of the C. A. R., spoke on the history of that organization, and Mrs. L. D. Burns, recently elected chairman, gave plans for it.

Mrs. H. W. McLarty presided in the absence of Mrs. Grady Poole, the chairman. Announcement was made of the progress of the month's project, the planting of a hundred acres in pines in north Georgia. Mrs. Guy Carmichael gave a Christmas reading.

Members of the junior group, who have been assisting at the Red Cross headquarters, include Mesdames John Thippen, William McDougall, Wallace Kilgore, James I. White, and Dewey Nabors.

For Miss Moore.

Mrs. Lafayette Butler entertained recently at a luncheon at the Variety Club in honor of Miss Ruth Moore, popular bride-elect. Shoulder clusters of gardenias marked the covers of the guests who were Mesdames Fred C. Reed, Ed Danforth, Benjamin Shute, William Elsas, Arthur LeCrav, Miss Frances Woolford and Miss Moore.

Patricia Cortelyou, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Mitchell, Harriette and Martha Mitchell, Rev. M. O. Sommers, Mrs. Sommers, Dick and Jane Sommers, Miss Lillian Mitchell, of Columbus, and Mrs. Jesse McGarity, of Birmingham.

Will Complete Project.

Mrs. McConnell reported on the activities since the last meeting. The society will complete one of the major projects begun during the regime of Mrs. Howard McCall when the marker is placed on Thippen trail, exercises to be held on March 21, 1940, under the auspices of Pierre Robert Chapter of Albany.

This organization is interested in the presentation and restoration of valuable records and will devote efforts during this administration to collection of state colonial records and valuable genealogical books, which will be added to the permanent collection placed in the state department archives and other libraries, and will be accessible at all times to research workers.

Mrs. Howard McCall reported on the year book, which will be published at once, and will be of special interest.

The sixth state assembly takes place March 27, 1940, at the Piedmont Driving Club in Atlanta. Mrs. W. F. Stone, the national president, will be honor guest.

Mrs. McConnell presided at the luncheon following the business session, held in the dining room of the club. Yellow chrysanthemums formed the floral decoration and the place cards were gilded oak leaves and acorns, tied with Colonial blue ribbon, the colors and emblem of the society.

Trouseau Tea Given For Miss Blackshear

Miss Dorothea Blackshear, who will wed Frank Brady Jr., of Charlotte, N. C., tomorrow, was central figure yesterday at the trouseau tea given by her mother and sister, Mrs. P. L. Blackshear and Miss Elizabeth Blackshear, at their home on Fifteenth street.

How Can a Wife Cure Her Husband of Telling Lies?

Four Points For Her To Remember

By Caroline Chatfield.

Dear Miss Chatfield: I've been married for 15 years to a man who gives me an adequate allowance for household expenses, lovely clothes, provides me with a car and a full-time maid, encourages me to come and go as I choose, takes me on trips and is very generous with me and our three children. Yet I would gladly exchange all luxuries for one quality in his character: Truthfulness. He's a natural born liar.

I'm not an egotist nor an inquisitive person so there is no cause for his lying to me. But he lies when there's nothing to be gained by it: about his profession, about bills, about things little and big. The children are now old enough to recognize his weakness and I am terrified for fear he will make liars out of them. My affection and respect for him are being killed and I find it hard to meet him with a kiss.

I have never mentioned the subject to him because I'm afraid to, afraid of what I might say. Must I accept the situation as hopeless and let my love die? I cannot continue to care for a man that gives me everything but the truth.

CHEATED.

Answer: Friend, some wise man said that a lie is the refuge of a coward. Now what makes a coward of a man is something else and his wife may be the last person in the world to ferret out the cause.

No doubt a good psychiatrist could delve into the past of your husband's childhood home and find the germ of this lying habit. Then come along with him to his marriage and lay a finger on some contributing causes which everybody has overlooked. But it isn't easy to get a patient to a doctor unless the patient is suffering acute physical pain. So here are some practical suggestions that a wife may use and herself play doctor to her husband.

First: A wife should never take for granted her husband's great generosity to her and the children but should fall over herself expressing her gratitude and affection; and teach the children to do the same.

Second: She should be very sure that the generous husband isn't straining himself financially to provide her with luxuries and for two big reasons: one, that when a man is in trouble he frequently tries to shield himself from his wife's eyes with big gifts coming up continually; the other, that in time, extravagance will lead to trouble.

Third: A wife cannot permit her sense of humor to desert her and become so literal minded that she can't enjoy a fairy story, laugh at a fish story, respect poetic license or recognize hyperbole when her husband introduces it.

Fourth: She should bear in mind that a lying man has conflicts and turmoil within that outweigh any suffering his lying causes her. Also it's at its own matter of time until his deceptions and cheats will kill what's left of his love for her. In which event she will have more to worry about than her loss of respect and affection for him: namely taxes, groceries, fuel and clothes, to say nothing of maid service, trips and fine gifts.

One Pattern—Several Styles

By Barbara Bell.

We predict great popularity for this new and delightfully different daytime pattern (1870-B) with the graceful bias skirt. It's such a perfect example, for one thing, of the simple frock that's not too severely tailored. For another, you can make it up in several different ways—collarless, or with contrasting collar with contrasting sleeves and bib yoke—or all in one color.

You can trim it with braid, or not at all. In fact, its variations are practically endless every one of them is pretty, so you'll make this pattern up time after time! Use flat crepe, challis, jersey or wool crepe.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1870-B is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 40, 42 and 44. Corresponding bust measurements 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 16 (34) requires 4 7-8 yards of 39-inch material with long sleeves; 4 1-2 with short. See chart for contrast and trimming requirements.

It's smart to sew your own! It's easy to do. Send for our fascinating Pattern Book. Choose from more than 100 new designs for all occasions and all sizes. Make your own becoming clothes, with these simple patterns. Step-by-step sew chart with each one.

Price of Pattern Book, 15c. Do not send stamps. Mail orders to Barbara Bell Pattern Department, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

WORDS OF WISDOM. Sin has many tools, but a lie is the handle that fits them all.—Holmes.

An "afternoon cocktail" masque will hold that youthful freshness in the face, and it is a home treatment that is equivalent to an expensive one at a beauty parlor. Evelyn Keyes, the Atlanta girl who went to Hollywood and is one of the featured players in the forthcoming production of "Gone With the Wind," has that relaxed beauty for which all women strive.

Average Woman Needs Masque Treatment at Least Twice Weekly

By Lillian Mae.

A world-famous beauty authority has said that the average woman needs a masque treatment at least twice a week, to keep her skin awake and clear.

I told you in my last article about the "afternoon cocktail" masque for tired faces and the masque to prevent or remedy enlarged pores and blackheads. Today I have to recommend to you one that is a real rest cure for weary faces—a home treatment equivalent to an expensive one in a beauty parlor.

This masque is made of especially treated pale pink silk jersey, designed to the basic muscle structure of the face. You simply dip the masque into the tightening lotion, which comes with it, and as you fit the soft silk over your face and throat you feel so luxurious that your facial muscles begin to relax even before the magic of the masque gets under way.

To a neck that is beginning to be stringy, this masque will give a feeling and appearance of firmness. It lifts the double chin and shoes away the tension lines around your nose, mouth and across your forehead. You can feel these things happening, so very soothing and pleasant is the masque while performing its work. And it can be worn as often as you please, whatever you are doing—whether busy about your housework, taking your afternoon rest, or even during your bath. Wear it for half an hour—or even an hour—and feel it lift the contours of face and throat.

There's an adjustable nose-piece to take care of those tired lines around your eyes.

Informality Is Over-Stressed In the Gable-Lombard Home

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 28.—Margaret Sullivan's recent "serious" illness turned out to be a sty on her eye. "But I did my best to be ill," says Margaret — "because there was a football game I wanted to see." Miss Sullivan, who is the mother of two daughters, tells me that motherhood will be a continual item of her program—"until I have a boy." . . . Carole Lombard called up her home and asked—"Is Mr. Gable there?" And this is what the maid shouted to Clark—"Hey, pa, ma's on the phone!" Even Carole thought this was carrying informality too far. . . . For Miss Lombard's picture, "Vigil in the Night," it was necessary to get a British night-schedule railroad time-table. When the request was forwarded to England, it was refused, with—"For obvious reasons, it is impossible to give out night train schedules."

Orson Welles receives $25 only for his first screen job. He will be heard, but not seen, with a few words of introduction for "Swiss Family Robinson." But don't get the idea that Orson is slipping. For his next screen chore—"Heart of Darkness"—He will be paid $150,000—which is quite a raise. . . . Robert Taylor and Barbara Stanwyck received a terrific hand when they recently made a personal appearance at New York's Madison Square Garden. But they almost didn't make it. An elaborate entrance had been arranged for the two stars, but, at the last moment, Bob got stage fright, and finally had to be pushed on! . . . Wallace Beery and Mae Murray are something new in romantic couples. I saw them doing a hot rumba the other early a. m.

William Powell's first wife has just completed an eight-month siege of illness at the local Good Samaritan hospital—with Bill a constant visitor. . . . John Garfield almost acted as marriage-maker for Barbara Brewster, of the Brewster twins, and Dr. Lee Segal. Barbara and Segal have been going around with each other for the past six months, and John, who believes that, when people are in love, they should marry, told them that, if they would drive to Yuma or Mexico that instant—it was 11 p. m., two nights ago—he would go with them and be best man. Segal said, "yes," Barbara said, "no." So it is "no."

The junior Douglas Fairbanks have that date with the stork in April. Douglas wants a boy, and, if the powers-that-be "okay," he will be named Douglas Fairbanks third. . . . It is high time that Maureen O'Sullivan returned to the screen. What's the matter, Metro? . . . What reminds me that this same studio has been accused of mistreating Greer Garson in "Remember?" In fairness to Metro, it must be told that it was Greer herself who insisted on playing the part—against the advice of the executives. . . . Deanna Durbin and W. C. Fields are neighbors, and can be seen and heard passing the time of day at the fence dividing their homes.

Paul Muni was right in his complaint that, at present, pictures are made for adolescents only. Producers are afraid to put this or that in a picture because of unsuitability for the young. Why not do as Muni suggests and make two classes of pictures—one for adults and one for children?

Shirley Temple is attending a real school for the first time in her life. It's her mother's idea—she wants Shirley to see how the rest of the world's youngsters live and think. By the way, "Lady Jane" is next on Shirley's picture schedule—to follow "The Bluebird," which will come to you around Christmas. . . . Laurence Olivier and Vivien Leigh spent Thanksgiving at Santa Barbara. They went to a movie there—"Wuthering Heights," in which Laurence does such a good job of making love to Merle Oberon.

Game-Forcing Response Is Avoided

By Harold Sharpsteen.

Mere possession of 3 1-2 honor-tricks does not always warrant a game-forcing response by partner of opening bidder. Lacking a fit for partner's bid suit or a good rebiddable suit of his own, responder should prefer a simple suit takeout when required to jump to three-odd, despite his unusual honor-trick strength.

For example, partner opens the bidding one heart, second has passing. You hold: S-A 9 6 3 D-A K 7 5 H-8 C-A J 10 8. Your hand contains four honor-tricks while 3 1-2 honor-tricks is the high-card requirement for a game-forcing response under ordinary conditions.

NO FIT FOR PARTNER. The weakness of this hand lies in the fact that you have a singleton in partner's bid suit, and both of your biddable suits are four-card lengths.

Under the circumstances your preferred response is a simple suit takeout of two diamonds. . . . or two clubs. You choose to respond in one of your minor suits because of your weakness in hearts, and in spades as well. Furthermore by answering in your minor suit first partner is able to show a spade suit of his own and at the two level.

If your partner should respond two spades, you now have an excellent play for six spades. If he rebids his hearts you may now show your other minor suit as a rebid, but undoubtedly you should then dismiss a slam possibility from your mind because of your poor fit in partner's original heart bid. Slams are seldom possible when suits misfit.

Vitamin Plus Insulin, The Doctor Said

By Dr. William Brady.

In an article entitled "Vitamin Plus Insulin" I said here recently that a diabetes patient who requires a certain daily dose or doses of insulin to keep sugar-free may get along with less insulin after he or she has received a large daily ration of vitamin B to supplement the prescribed diet for some weeks. In the article I found fault with the fifth edition (1935) of Dr. Elliot P. Joslin's monograph on "Treatment of Diabetes" because the work contains only five and one-half lines of rather academic comment on vitamin B, and ventured the prophecy that in the next edition of Professor Joslin's book vitamin B will rate a good deal more space than that.

In earlier articles I have cited reports of various investigators who concluded that vitamin B has an effect on carbohydrate metabolism (utilization of starches and sugars) similar to that of insulin. For instance French investigators (Labbe, M. Neveu and Grin-goire, Bull. Acad. med. 97, 689, 1933) observed that administering liberal rations of vitamin B as a supplement to the prescribed diet for several weeks, in cases of diabetes, gave an effect equivalent to 32 to 45 units of insulin. They found that this effect is slow, requiring a month or more of high vitamin B intake to become evident.

Numerous readers subject to diabetes have reported that a liberal intake of vitamin B has, after several weeks, enabled them to remain sugar-free or practically so on a smaller daily dosage of insulin.

A gentleman nearly 80, with whom I enjoyed a game of bowls frequently, has been taking insulin for several years. To please his daughter he began taking a liberal ration of vitamin B-complex to supplement his prescribed diet. After a few weeks he found that his regular dose of insulin produced some insulin shock, and so it became necessary to decrease the dose of insulin.

But one swallow does not make a summer, does it?

Probably as many or even more diabetics who have tried this suggestion have had no such happy experience. Certainly a considerable number of physicians still question the value of vitamin B as an aid in the treatment of diabetes. But there is steadily increasing laboratory or scientific evidence that vitamin B normally facilitates if it is not absolutely essential for carbohydrate metabolism.

Another observation, which is my own—take it or leave it and which I prophesy will find its way into the authoritative texts on diabetes a few years hence, is that deficiency of vitamin B in the diet has something to do with development of diabetes. I base this belief partly on the description of the common manifestations of moderate prolonged vitamin B deficiency given by Vorhaus, Williams and Waterman (Jour. A.M.A. Nov. 16, 1935): "Small amounts of sugar may be present in the urine, without hyperglycemia (excessive proportion of sugar in blood). There is usually a large carbohydrate intake, often marked with a tendency to obesity. These cases are frequently classified as potential diabetics." I base the belief also on the well recognized fact that overweight or obesity is present for 10 years or so before diabetes develops, in a majority of cases of diabetes.

A physician who specializes in the treatment of diabetes says he fears my teaching about vitamin B in diabetes may prove fatal to some patients. Diabetics are so prone to give up insulin that when an article on the value of vitamin B appears in my column it is capable of doing great harm.

So diabetics or potential diabetics please take heed. I said vitamin B plus insulin—I have never suggested that vitamin B can serve the purpose as a substitute for insulin.

If any reader subject to diabetes is so childish as to toss insulin overboard and try to get along with merely a daily ration of vitamin B, just because I say vitamin B is an aid in treatment, that is too bad, of course, but it will take a lot of such funerals to deter me from teaching the public what I believe is best for general welfare.

MY DAY Eye For Color Is Developing

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, Monday.—When I drove past the Lincoln Memorial yesterday, I noticed model boats were being sailed in the reflecting pool. Some enterprising owners had put a deep red sail and a blue one on their boats, which reminded me of the sailboats in the Adriatic. As a nation, we are really getting more of an eye for color. I hope our enjoyment will increase, for on gray days, such as we have in November, it is really a great thing to see splashes of color in the landscape.

I had a very young and somewhat distant cousin, Miss Catherine Davis, to lunch yesterday. She is down here working in the Agriculture Department. A graduate of Bennington College, she is with Senator Davenport's group of young people who enter the government service for a period of practical experience. She brought a friend, Miss Gretchen Ahlswede, who is working in the Department of Commerce personnel office. Both of them seemed interested in their Washington life, and I hope to see more of them during the winter.

A daughter of a friend in Poughkeepsie, Miss Catherine Conger, who is attending Catholic University, also came to lunch. We took a sight-seeing trip around the second floor of the White House after lunch.

Two of my old League of Women Voters friends, Miss Marguerite Wells, national president, and Mrs. George Gellhorn, of St. Louis, Missouri, also came to lunch. I think they would have liked to annex, for League for Women Voters work, all the young people at the table. I like this attitude of wanting to draw in the young people, for I have a feeling that many organizations fail in vitalizing their work, because they are not willing to give young people enough responsibility to make the work interesting. That is why so many organizations filled predominantly with older men and women, when, in order to continue the work, new blood must come in.

I am leaving here for New York city this afternoon, to fill a number of engagements in the next two days.

A grill of salmon wrapped in bacon and pineapple rings furnishes variety with economy.

Salmon-Pineapple-Bacon Grill Economical, Yet Rich In Value

By Sally Saver.

The savory blend of flavors and the speed with which it can be prepared recommend the dish pictured today. If it needs further recommendation it can produce that too—it also can boast of economy and health-giving qualities. The grill is salmon-pineapple-bacon. Salmon is widely known for its food values which come in very economical form, the bacon lends its comfortable goodness to the salmon and the pineapple complements everything! Here's how to make it:

Salmon-Pineapple-Bacon Grill.
1 pound canned salmon
3-4 cups cracker crumbs
1 egg, slightly beaten
6 strips sliced bacon
6 slices canned pineapple
1-4 cup butter or margarine, melted
2 teaspoons lemon juice
Combine flaked salmon, cracker crumbs and beaten egg. Form into oblong rolls. Wrap one slice of bacon around each salmon roll. Arrange salmon rolls and slices of pineapple on broiler pan. Brush a mixture of melted butter and lemon juice over all and cook under a 500-degree broiler until bacon is crisp and pineapple rounds are browned.

Do you know how to make crackling cornbread? Here's how:
Crackling Cornbread.
Mix together 1 1-2 cups sifted flour, 1 cup cornmeal, 1 teaspoon salt and 4 teaspoons of baking powder. Beat 2 eggs and mix with 1 cup milk. Stir the liquid into the dry mixture and mix well. Pour into a greased shallow pan and sprinkle with 1-2 cup finely chopped "crackling" or crisp fat from cooked pork. Bake in a hot oven, 400 degrees, for 25 minutes. Cut in squares and serve hot. Serves 6.

Questions about food preparation, recipes, quantity cooking, party planning, etc., will be answered by Sally Saver. Write or phone The Constitution or Walnut 6565.

All-Over Protection, and Neat

By Lillian Mae.

All-over protection and neat, crisp good looks are two essentials of a well-designed apron. Lillian Mae's Pattern 4315 has both—and it's easy-as-pie to stitch up, too! Those attractive bias panels at either side of the bodice are high-cut under the arms to give more than usual protection and smooth fit. One version shows the panels and pointed pockets made in gay contrast, with lacing running down the center; the other style has vivid ric-rac edging or ruffles. Notice how the center skirt panel extends up into the bodice in one easy piece. Don't miss the non-slip straps!

Pattern 4315 is available in sizes small, medium and large. Small size, view without pockets, takes 2 1-2 yards 35-inch fabric and 1 7-8 yards ric-rac; view with pockets, 2 1-8 yards 35-inch; 1-2 yard contrast.

Send fifteen cents (15c) in coins for this Lillian Mae pattern. Do not send stamps. Write plainly size, name, address and style number.

"Can I afford to be in style?" With New Year gaieties almost here, you can't afford not to be! Lillian Mae's Winter Pattern Book comes to your aid. There are vivid frocks for day and night festivities, as well as timely gift tips and winter vacation wearables. ## Tape Measure Tells If Legs Are Lovely

By Ida Jean Kain.

Maybe we're developing a streak of cynicism, but could it be that these leg contests are staged by the publicity department for the benefit of the beautiful young actress in need of a leg up the success ladder?

We hear that Virginia Gillmore is now rated No. 1 for lovely legs in Hollywood. She travels in good company. Ann Sheridan was mentioned for second place, Linda Darnell for third, and a girl by the name of Dietrich for fourth.

What makes us suspicious is the admission that the decisions were rendered after a study of photographs. Now I seem to recall once having told you that La Dietrich's limbs were not plump from the standpoint of the figure expert. And I did that after looking over her photographs. Investigation with the tape measure later proved that Miss Dietrich has very nice legs indeed.

Miss Gillmore's legs look fine in the photograph and it may be that she possesses the most beautiful pair in the movie colony. But I am not committing myself. The only reliable test of leg contours is the tape measure. Get yours out and see how you stand! Here's a table of perfect calf and ankle measurements for various heights. The heavy-boned or long-legged girl should use the "high" measure, and the small-boned or short-legged girl should take the "low" measure.

Muscle tone is what makes the big difference in legs, not weight. With good muscle tone, legs are at their best when the weight is also normal, but the big thing is the muscle tone. The movie girls who, as a group, have the loveliest legs are the dancers. Nowadays a dancer is careful to get plenty of leg stretching exercise to counteract too much contracting—on vice versa. If they did only the contracting exercises, they would soon develop the knobby muscles which result from using only a small percentage of the muscle range.

Unless you are a dancer, you have to plan for leg exercise. To fill out the contours, walk up stairs every chance you get on the toes. But stretch your legs, too, by exercising with the heels pointed—stand with the ball of the foot on a thick book, heel resting on the floor.

Miss Margaret Conger Marries Edwin S. Varner in Bainbridge

BAINBRIDGE, Ga., Nov. 28.—The First Baptist church formed the setting Thursday evening for the marriage of Miss Margaret Elizabeth Conger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Benjamin Conger, to Edwin S. Varner, son of Mr. and Mrs. John U. Grimsley, which was brilliantly solemnized at 8:30 o'clock.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. James E. Ward, uncle of the bride, and Rev. H. H. Shell, pastor of the First Baptist church. Music was presented by Miss Elisabeth O'Neal, organist, and Mrs. Ramsey Simmons.

Junior ushers were Leonard Conger, brother of the bride, and John U. Grimsley Jr., brother of the groom. Ushers were Allen Bloodworth, of Macon; George Clift, E. J. Willis, Clarke Gurley, Ed Perry Jr., Otis Fields Jr. and Abe and Willis Conger, twin brothers of the bride.

Miss Martha Ward, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor, and Miss Freddie Ward, Mary Eugenia Willis, Beth Knight, of Columbus; Jane Harrell, Elizabeth Mayes, of Chattahoochee, Fla., and Eugene Cox, of Washington, D. C., and Camilla, Ga., were bridesmaids. Junior bridesmaids were Miss Marjorie Willis and Ruth Gragg. Elizabeth Enloe, of Atlanta, and Catherine Ann Battle were flower girls and little Barbara Nell Curry, of Bradenton, Fla., was ringbearer.

The bride's attendants were gowned alike in charming infantine frocks of changeable gold taffeta made with tight bodices, voluminous skirts and featuring sweetheart necklines, three-quarter-length sleeves and looped bustles. Their hats, made of the same taffeta as the gowns, were tied at the back with taffeta ribbons, and topped by two gardenias in gold.

The maid of honor carried a cascade bouquet of tallisman roses and blue valley lilies tied with blue satin ribbon. The bridesmaids' bouquets were of rust chrysanthemums tied with rust satin ribbon.

The flower girls wore miniature models like the bridesmaids' dresses and carried old-fashioned nosegays. The little ring-bearer was gowned in white taffeta and carried the ring on a large white chrysanthemum.

The radiant bride entered with her father, Abraham Benjamin Conger, by whom she was given in marriage, and was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Fields Varner. She was gowned in white slipper satin, girdled tulle, and a sweetheart neckline, fitted bodice, and leg-o-mutton sleeves were features of the gown. Her tulle veil fell from a cap of valley lilies, and her only ornament was a diamond cross, a family heirloom worn by the bride's mother at her wedding. Her bridal bouquet was a cascade arrangement of bride's roses and valley lilies centered with white orchids.

After the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Conger entertained at a reception at their suburban home, Lingerlong, to which several hundred guests were invited.

Receiving with Mr. and Mrs. Conger were the bride and groom, the parents of the groom, and the members of the bridal party.

Mr. and Mrs. Varner left for their wedding trip to Miami and Palm Beach, Fla. Upon their return they will reside here, where the groom holds a position with the Texas Company.

The bride traveled in a modish two-piece suit of sheer brown wool featuring a red fox jacket. She wore a brown velvet turban and matching accessories, and her shoulder spray was of orchids and valley lilies.

Among the out-of-town guests from Atlanta attending the wedding were Governor and Mrs. E. D. Rivers, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Mangham Jr., Mrs. Fort Land and S. Marvin Griffin, of Atlanta.

Kappa Delta Group Gives Dinner-Dance.

After the Oglethorpe-Mississippi College football game Saturday, active members of Alpha Tau Chapter, of Kappa Delta sorority at Oglethorpe University entertained the pledges at a dinner-dance at a local hotel. Happy Felton and his orchestra dedicated several specialty numbers, including "Kappa Delta Girl."

Honoring Miss Dorothea Blackshear, who will wed Frank Brady, Jr., of Charlotte, N. C., on Thursday, was the tea given by Mrs. Gene Nardin yesterday noon at her home on Ponce de Leon avenue.

Tri Delta Fraternity Will Hold Founders' Day Banquet Tonight

A highlight of this evening will be the annual Tri Delta Founders' Day banquet to be held at 7 o'clock at the Georgian Terrace hotel. The affair will commemorate the 51st anniversary of Tri Delta fraternity, which was founded on Thanksgiving day, 1888, at Boston University.

The theme of the program will be "The Founding of Tri Delta and Its Founders." Sketches of the lives of the founders will be an interesting feature of the evening, and will be presented by Mrs. L. P. Jervey, Miss Minnie Dunlap and Miss Janice Ryan.

Mrs. G. A. Fisher will speak on "The Founding of Tri Delta." Misses Louise McKie and Carolyn Campbell will render musical selections of Tri Delta, and Miss Christine Smith, president of the Atlanta Alliance, will read the annual proclamation from the international president of Tri Delta.

Toastmistress for the festive occasion will be Mrs. John N. Connell, who will also present a brief resume of the events of importance in Tri Delta's history.

The banquet table will be decorated in silver, gold and blue, the color scheme to be accented by artistic arrangements of pine cones and miniature boughs, the pine tree being the official tree of Tri Delta, and one of the symbols.

Members of Tri Delta desiring to attend the banquet may phone Miss Christine Smith, Walnut 6111.

Miss McKay and Madison Byrd To Wed in Tampa This Evening

TAMPA, Fla., Nov. 28.—Of important social interest will be the marriage here next Wednesday of Miss Mary Jeanne McKay, of this city, and Daniel Madison Byrd, of Atlanta, and Washington, D. C., which takes place on Wednesday at the Hyde Park Presbyterian church.

Dr. W. M. Anderson, who officiated at the marriage ceremony of the bride-elect's parents, will perform the ceremony at 8 o'clock in the presence of a large gathering of relatives, friends and out-of-town guests.

Miss Winifred McKay, of this city and New York, will be the maid of honor and the bridesmaids will be Miss Rita Von Ossen, of New York; Mrs. Harry Root Jr., and Mrs. Sidney Wash, of this city.

James King Byrd, of Atlanta, will be best man for his brother and the groomsmen will be Randolph Throver, of Washington; Chris Conyers, of Brunswick; and Douglas Dennis, of Atlanta. Ushers will be Boisfeuillet Jones, Jack Talbert, E. Lewis King, of Atlanta; John McKay and Sidney Wash, of Tampa, and Hal Gibson, of New York.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth McKay entertain at a reception at their home on South Willow street for their daughter and Mr. Byrd. The rehearsal party took place this evening.

Club Contests To Close Friday

Mrs. Paul Ackery, chairman of the Pose group of the Atlanta Writers Club, announces that the closing for the Christmas contest for short stories and articles is Friday, December 1, the stories not to exceed three thousand words and the articles not over fifteen hundred words.

Stories and articles may be sent to either Mrs. Paul Ackery, chairman, 30 Inman Circle, N. E., Atlanta, or Mrs. L. A. McKinley, co-chairman, 23 Northwood avenue, N. E., Atlanta.

Mrs. A. M. Elton, chairman of the Poetry Forum of the Atlanta Writers Club, requests all poems for the Christmas contest to be in the hands of the committee by Friday, December 1, no poem to exceed 32 lines. These may be sent to Mrs. A. M. Elton, 1302 Emory road, N. E., or to Mrs. Alex B. Brown, co-chairman, 860 Briarcliff road, N. E., city.

Willing Workers.

An affair of recent date was the breakfast for the Willing Workers' Class of the East Point Presbyterian Sunday school.

Mrs. Gilbert McDuffie, social chairman, was in charge. Mrs. C. Boswell, class teacher, brought the devotionals.

Mrs. Trotter Honors Mrs. Hardman Today

Mrs. Richard A. Trotter entertains at tea at her home at 28 13th street, N. E., this afternoon at 3 o'clock in honor of Mrs. B. H. Hardman, first grade teacher at Clark Howell school. ## KISS AFTER MIDNIGHT

The First Kiss...And The Last—
Faith's Thoughts About Carl

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

SYNOPSIS

Faith Gardner, orphaned as a child, is raised by a cross old aunt in a New Hampshire village. She is a stenographer in a factory and when her aunt dies she goes to New York. Lonely, jobless sometimes, after two years she and Gretchen Cole furnish a small apartment. Faith is then a secretary in the firm of which Walter Edmonds is vice president. Gretchen, who left an Ohio town after a shattered romance, is a stylist in a big store. Greg Heath, employed by the Edmonds firm, takes her to a social party given by Edmonds' wife Astrid. She greets Faith graciously but Faith feels she has met an enemy as dangerous as she is beautiful. Walter presents her to Greg. Astrid meets her in Hawaii. She loves Greg and secretly plans to divorce Walter. Even before Faith meets Carl Edmonds, Walter's brother and a famous aviator and engineer, she is in love with him. As she leaves, the Edmonds' pretty, headstrong, 16-year-old daughter Sue meets her, saying she has run away from school again. Sue likes Faith and at her suggestion Walter makes her his secretary. He asks her to win Sue's confidence so she can suggest how to deal with her. Philip Turner, who drinks too much but is charming when sober, becomes interested in Gretchen. Faith feels she is in a trap when Carl says he will never marry because of his roving, carefree mode of living. Sue stays overnight with Faith after a date with Michael Britton. Astrid suddenly gets rid of Walter, Michael phones Sue asking for a loan of $50. Carl takes Faith to the Florida party. Linda, Steve Field's wife, tells Faith she was in love with Carl and she is in love with her. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT XVII.

"I've thought about you a lot lately—in Boston at Christmas-time especially. There's a girl in New York with black hair and eyes—quite perfect. Why did I come to Boston? A man could lose himself and everything he hopes to do and be in your eyes." Then before she could answer, "You and Sue are going to Florida soon, aren't you?"

"In two weeks."

"Flying?"

She shook her head and smiled. "No. By ship. I've never had an ocean voyage and your brother was kind enough to suggest it. We'll stay at a hotel in Miami Beach. Mr. and Mrs. Edmonds have friends there to see that Sue and I aren't lonely."

"Lonely with Sue? Never! Besides, I see you surrounded by sun-burned young men. I'm horribly jealous." Their laughter mingled before he said, "Walter told me about Sue's recent difficulties. Poor kid. It hurts, doesn't it, to see a child hurt. But according to Walter, she's lucky to have escaped. Incidentally, Walter said splendid things about you."

"I always say splendid things about him to other people. He's never cross, he never... well, takes things out on me. I understand now why every one in the company speaks so highly of him." When he asked her if she would care to dance, she arose and put her arm around him. The awareness of his closeness instantly shut out the nondescript night-club faces. For several minutes while they were enclosed in poignant music, he said nothing. Then, his mouth close to her hair, he said, "Faith, I once asked you if you would like me more or less if I didn't make love to you. It's difficult not to, having you like this..." Suddenly they were looking at each other. Carl said, "No, not with you, Faith, not for a short love affair with an unhappy ending..."

She spoke her thoughts and her voice sounded strange and far away. "You mean you're fond of me, Carl, but that you can live without me..."

He nodded. "Yes. I can't play the usual game of love with you—to kiss, not to make promises. That's right." His words were clipped short. "I care for you but I can live without you."

Still looking at him... "I'd like to go now, Carl."

They drove back with silence heavy between them.

When he stopped the car, he said, looking ahead, his voice tired,

"We must be enemies or lovers, Faith, and we must be neither. No memories that will hurt. I don't want to marry you—or anybody. You care for me. I feel it. I know it. Not that I'm a bargain for any girl." Turning his head slowly, he looked at her a long moment. "I'd like to kiss you, Faith."

Our first kiss, our last, Carl...

The beginning and the end... He drew her close and kissed her twice, the first ardent, the second tender. Then his mouth lingered against her face while he said, "I won't see you in. It would spoil this to say a casual good night while your elevator operator stared at us. Will you go now?"

He opened the door and she stepped out and hurried into the apartment building, not glancing back because she was crying. You live years in a few minutes...

Her heart felt as if it had burst, spreading pain. In her mind one thought tumbled over the other. She would never see him again. He cared for her but he could live successfully without her or any girl, and meant to... He would not make love to her and hurt her and discard her...

He hadn't let her say that she loved him... Sue would never see him again... Sue had said, "I can't stand it! I can't bear it!" when Michael Britton said an angry good-bye. Faith thought, I feel the same. Oh, Carl, why, why...? There was no one in the lobby. Had there been, she could not have checked her tears. Taking her handkerchief, she tried to hide them from the curious eyes of the elevator operator as he took her up. She hoped that Gretchen was asleep or out. Pity, even Gretchen's, was undurable, too. And so as you wish to keep happiness completely yours, so do you wish to keep alone at love's failure...

Her hands were trembling and she had difficulty in finding her key in her purse. Opening the door, she stepped into the living room to see Gretchen and Philip, the former wearing her smart green suit, the latter still wearing his overcoat, his hat in his hand, staring at each other angrily.

Philip, his back to Faith, cried, "All right, if that's what you want more than what I have to offer! Take it, go to Paris... That means more to you than anything else, doesn't it... success, feeling important, wearing the smartest clothes and telling other clothes-crazy women what they'll be wearing a year from now! A man's love and companionship, his life, a home, a family are nothing to you, are they? Gretchen, you're not a woman to desire those things above all other things!"

Gretchen, seeing Faith, ignored her. Her eyes were wretched. "You don't understand, Philip. I've worked so hard. I put love out of my life because it disappointed me once..."

"Marriage is something to keep for life. It's a guarantee against loneliness. You can lose your precious job any time, and then what have you? I've said everything a man can say. But I won't go on this way with you. I want more. I want everything. I want to marry you. I never realized before what love can do for a man and for a woman, too, I suppose. From feeling that I was a murderer because I shot a friend by accident, and drinking to wipe out a horrible memory, I came to feel whole again and happy—with you. I had lived because I couldn't die, but since I've known you, I've wanted to live. I want a future with you."

He paused abruptly. "Sorry for losing my temper. Good night, Gretchen, and good bye."

When he moved, she said quickly, "Don't go like this—angry. Oh, I'm so mixed up!" Then, more calmly, "Yes, you'd better go, Philip. There's nothing else to say. I'm sorry." And turning, she walked away from him slowly and pulled the green hat from her hair.

Philip said, "Oh, Faith, I didn't see you. Good-night."

When he left, Gretchen turned, tears in her eyes. "Oh, I know what you're thinking, too—that I'm wrong! What a ghastly scene! But an earlier scene wasn't ghastly. The things he said to me, such sweet things when he asked me to marry him. And today my promotion came through."

She straightened, her eyes clearing. "Maybe I'm wrong but I'll have to find out. And Paris is—the first stop. I sail next month. Oh, Faith don't stand there looking so miserable, accusing me. Are you crying over my wrongness?"

So numb, so hurt, she wondered if she could speak. "No, Gretchen. I've been crying because I'm never going to see Carl again. We kissed for the first and last time about 10 minutes ago..."

"Oh, darling, I'm so sorry. Forgive me for being so thoughtless. Don't know what I'm saying." Her blue eyes were kinder. "You and Philip, Carl and I... Nothing will ease this hurt for you for a long time, nothing your friends can say, nothing I can say, nothing, nothing at all. I'm glad you're going away."

Going away, escape... There was small comfort in feeling that nothing would ever hurt her quite so much again. The thought, "I'll never see Carl again," was a sharp, silent cry of pain that lessened only to a ceaseless ache during the following week, the bleakest week she had ever known. Twice she almost phoned him, not realizing until the moment passed and her pride returned that there was nothing to say to him.

STATE HOSPITAL'S BUILDING PROJECT AT MID-WAY MARK

Fine New Structure Will Provide Facilities for Relieving Crowded Conditions at Institution.

By JACK TUBBS,

State News Editor.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., Nov. 28. More than 7,000 mental defectives, heretofore crowded into quarters intended for no more than 5,000, will have adequate "air space" for the first time in many years when the $4,000,000 building program now under way at the Georgia State Hospital is completed next year, Superintendent J. W. Oden said today.

Norman O. Head, Public Works Administration chief resident engineer, and Resident Engineer T. H. Massey meanwhile announced the half-way mark has been reached in the program, largest of its kind in nine southeastern states, which is expected to be completed in time for official dedication about June 1.

Five huge buildings are under construction—four dormitory structures for general mental cases, and an immense three-unit tuberculosis building—designed to provide facilities for about 3,000 patients, Dr. Oden said. They will replace two buildings recently condemned, in which approximately 1,000 patients have been quarantined.

Crowded Conditions. All the new space, the superintendent explained, will be utilized to relieve crowded conditions which have existed several years, and even completion of the new buildings will not permit expansion of the registry beyond the approximately 7,100 cases now on hand.

Each of the new dormitory buildings will have, in addition to individual rooms, a number of connected two, four and six-bed wards, divided by four-and-a-half-foot walls, over which a nurse attendant may observe all his or her charges. Each building will have its own kitchen, connected by elevator with staff dining rooms and patients' cafeterias on each floor. Each also will have its own refrigerating unit, doctor's offices, and other facilities, and will be heated by a 5,700-foot system of steam tunnels. Windows of double-strength glass and of special metal construction will admit a maximum of light in all parts of each building.

Connected by Tunnels. The units of the tubercular building will be connected by underground tunnels to protect patients from inclement weather.

About 1,100 workmen, representing almost every section of the state and many crafts from Plumber to skilled mechanics, are engaged in the huge construction project, which produces a weekly pay roll of approximately $100,000.

Every part of every unit in the construction program is inspected daily by Assistant Engineers P. M. Christian and L. H. Grady, whose task it is to see that the government gets full value for the millions of dollars it is pouring into the project.

Meanwhile, the Works Projects Administration is engaged in other minor projects on the hospital grounds, involving chiefly the renovation of two men's dormitories.

NARCOTIC SMUGGLERS SMASHED IN EGYPT

GENEVA, Nov. 28.—(P)—League of Nations officials announced today that Egyptian police had smashed a large opium and hashish smuggling ring because an Arab refused to sell a policeman a worthless, old camel for about $40.

The Egyptian government's report to the League opium section said police found nearly 164 pounds of opium and hashish in the stomachs of 19 camels. Smugglers running narcotics from Palestine into Egypt, the report said, forced the old camels to swallow zinc cylinders containing narcotics, then drove them through the border quarantine.

Crowded Conditions at State Hospital To Be Relieved

This huge building—one of five new structures now going up on the grounds of the Georgia State Hospital in Milledgeville—will provide much-needed facilities for tubercular patients now crowded into other quarters. The picture was taken from a window in one great wing, while two other units may be seen in the background and at right. The kitchen building is shown in center foreground. All buildings will be connected by tunnels such as that stretching diagonally across the foreground.

Four great buildings such as this, in addition to the tuberculosis building shown above, will be added to the facilities of the Georgia State hospital by midsummer of 1940, but will not even then provide space for additional admissions. More than 7,000 patients are now crowded into buildings equipped for 5,000. The five new buildings, with quarters for 3,000, will take the place of two buildings condemned, which housed 1,000.
